Ducks frozen in winter openers

■ TENNIS: The men's team swept by Washington, while the women's team defeated in Seattle

By Andrea DeYoung
Assistant Sports Editor

The Oregon men's tennis team played its only home Pacific-10 Conference match on Saturday and was swept by the Washington Huskies 7-0.

The Ducks entered the contest with a 5-1 record from the fall season, having only lost to Brigham Young in their last match back in November.

Coming into Saturday's competition, head coach Chris Russell knew that the match would be a tough one.

"Washington is a great team,"

Russell said. "They lost to USC in their last match 4-3, and USC is a very good team."

The Ducks lost all three of the double matches despite leading in the No. 1 and No. 2 matches.

In singles action, the Huskies were able to sweep the matches in straight sets.

Oregon's No. 1 player Dougal Williams was defeated by Ornelo Ariati 6-3, 7-5 after losing the lead in the second set.

No. 2 Hans Forsberg was defeated by Washington's Nick Williams 6-3, 6-2 and No. 3 John DeVors lost to the Huskies' Eric Drew 6-1, 6-3.

The men's team will take to the road next weekend to play St. Mary's, San Jose State and California.

The Oregon women's tennis team traveled to Seattle last weekend to compete in the Pac-10 Indoor Tournament.

Oregon's Caryn Coyle battled through the quarterfinal round, defeating Amanda Augustus from California by default. But then she was defeated by USC's Nicole London 7-6, 6-0 in the semifinal round.

Oregon's Ali Napier made it to the quarterfinal round as well, but lost to Arizona's Stephanie Sammaritano 6-3, 6-1.

Allison Sosnow and Shanelle Kaneshiro were also defeated in the quarterfinal round by players from Arizona and Arizona State.

The Ducks have a two weeks off before heading to California to play San Jose State on February 2.

Women's Basketball: Winning ways could carry over into following games

Boyer to the starting lineup. The 6-foot forward scored eight points on 3-of-5 shooting in the first period to follow up a rusty performance against Stanford last Thursday after a one-game suspension.

Boyer went on to quietly fill in 12 points and seven rebounds in 22 minutes of play. The Ducks also got a spark from freshman Lisa Bowyer, who came off the bench to hit two three-pointers and rack up 13 points and four assists. Oregon coach Jody Runge was able to rest her starters for the majority of the garbage-time second half, as every player that suited up contributed substantial minutes.

"I was pleased that our subs came in and came in early and played hard," said Runge, who kept her reserves in the game for the majority of the second half. "If it had been a 10-point ball game they would still be in there."

The Ducks were able to control California's driving offense that has been the most successful this season when guards Sherri Smith and Sokolowska have been able to slash to the hoop. Oregon executed its game plan of shutting down the lanes on defense and rotating in players to check the Bear's speedy guards. Sokolowska lead all scorers with 26, but only had nine before intermission.

"Our intention was to really come out and defend, and not let them get off to a penetrating start," Runge said. "We gapped it up and made them have to go to their outside shots. We did a really good job at that."

The major chink in the Ducks armor Sunday was the team's overall inability to control the defensive boards. When Oregon's lead approached the 25-point mark in the second half, California was forced to start launching from the outside. The Bears went on to grab 20 offensive rebounds during the game.
