Ski team has strong outing; hockey team loses

■ CLUB SPORTS: The club soccer team also competed last weekend, losing to Portland

Sarah Momsen took first overall and Alan Siler placed in the top 15 when the Oregon alpine club sport skiing team came in third overall at Brundage Mountain in McCall, Idaho. Allison Bigsby also placed in the top five.

Oregon's Kina Gibbs was satisfied with the result. "Hopefully if we keep it up, we will make nationals," she said.

The Oregon club hockey team fell short of their goal Jan. 19 and 20 as they were swept by California, 7-3 and 4-2.

Center Rob Achs turned in a big weekend for the Ducks with two goals and an assist. Defensemen Jordan Weiner and Ben Williams and center Dan Helm rounded out the scoring with one goal apiece for Oregon.

Penalty minutes cost the Ducks as they went most of the weekend with at least one man in the penalty box.

"They were playing pretty cheap, and we played down to their level," Weiner said. "We could have easily beat them. We were trying to point fingers at our team members, our coach and mostly the referees."

Two game ejections on Jan. 20 put Oregon in a hole it wasn't able to climb out of. Oregon Head Coach Nick Ham gave credit where it was due.

"Cal is an outstanding team," Ham said. "We played well on Saturday, but they were able to take advantage of our penalty minutes."

Oregon's men's club sport soccer team gave a good showing at last weekend's Java Cup at Autzen Stadium. The Ducks advanced through three rounds of the tournament before losing a semifinal game to the Portland Crunch, 4-3.

The tournament provided Oregon's first competition since fall term's outdoor season, during which the Ducks compiled an impressive 9-0-1 record and made it to the quarterfinals of the national tournament in Austin, Texas.

Autzen's artificial turf helped prepare the Ducks for their indoor season, which kicks off Jan. 29 in Salem.

Oregon goalkeeper Greg Labavitch felt the team started off the new season well, but noted players will still need to adapt to indoor competition.

"We adjusted well to the turf," Labavitch said, "but [indoor games] are going to be a lot different than Autzen."

Indoor fields are flat (Autzen's field is sloped for drainage purposes), and both the field area and goal size are decreased.
