

Living in Sexile

AFTER A FEW WEEKS OF SLEEPLESS agony, the rhythmic sound of her roommate's squeaking mattress eventually lulled State U. of New York, Binghamton, senior Kellie Daly to sleep. Heck, by the end of the year, Daly found the sound of her roommate's nightly hook-ups as soothing as the sounds of crickets outside.

URGE

But some roommates aren't so lucky. What do you do when things go bump in the night? Do you seek alternative housing for the night or do you seek revenge?

Lloyd Sabin, a senior at SUNY, Albany, took the aggressive approach. When a roommate made a habit of slipping into the house with his girlfriend, locking his door and blasting his stereo all night, the house mates took a stand.

One night when the noisy roommate turned his music down, they put their speakers against his wall and serenaded him with a few selections of their own.

"We played 'Rape Me' by Nirvana, 'Closer' by Nine Inch Nails and 'Laid' by James, over and over," Sabin says. "After that, we never had any trouble sleeping again."

If this solution sounds a little harsh, you have to remember that this problem isn't easy to discuss. We're not talking about keeping the bathroom clean.

A senior at Northwestern U. decided to give her roommate a similar condom-nation when the roommate's boyfriend started racking up frequent user miles in their room.

"I put used condoms in her dresser drawer," she says.

But if you're fresh out of condoms, and the hook-up standoff is on, try one of these ways of dealing with a loud and lusty roommate:

- Put muzzles on your roommate's bed.
- Record what you hear and play it at your next dinner party.
- Watch. Cheer. Give suggestions.
- Attach sound-sensitive alarms to various objects in the room.
- Tell his/her mom.
