the trip down for the game.

Mac Court will no doubt be rocking, creating an emotional setting for both teams. The Oregon athletic department has announced that it has already sold more than 5,000 tickets, already the seventh highest total in Oregon history.

"We like to play in front of a big crowd," Fegent said. "I think the crowd will definitely be a good thing for us. It will create a lot of emotion for us, and if we can use our emotion the right way it will really help us."

"I think we have struggled in the pressure situations this season," Runge added. "The positive part that's going for us is that traditionally, if we have a bad performance as we did in our last game against UCLA, then we come back with a better performance. I hope that's what happens against OSU."
