ing summer theater about ten years ago because of increased University restrictions on summer classes, faculty conflicts and finances, Gilg said.

The first play, "Wiley and the Hairy Man," is a fable presented in lyric poetry and mime. The story is a comedy based on a Southern folk legend about a boy who learns to overcome his fears. Magic is an important part of the story and the performance, said graduate student and director Dana Smith. In the play, actors take on the roles of normally inanimate objects such as trees, rocks and chairs, she said. Performances of "Wiley" will be in the outdoor amphitheater next to Robinson Theater.

This weekend, "All in the Timing" opens at the Arena Theatre at Villard Hall. "All in the Timing" is a collection of six short comedies by playwright David Ives. Topics of the short pieces include everything from contemporary relationships to the old saw about chimpanzees randomly typing "Hamlet." The humor in the play ranges from subtle to broad and is sure to please, said graduate student and director Heather Lindsay.

The third play in the repertory theater's rotating lineup is "A...My Name is Still Alice," the sequel to the musical revue, "A...My Name is Alice." The play is a collection of fun songs and
