Memorable Moments

Since 1948 the Oregon-Washington rivalry has grown into a war between states.

"The Drive" and "The Play". The 1994 Oregon-Washington match-up had it all.

With 7:40 left in the game, Danny O'Neil and the Ducks trailed the Huskies 20-17 and had the ball on their own 2-yard line. O'Neil connected with Dameron Ricketts on a 36-yard completion for "The Drive's" big play. The Ducks kept marching downfield until Dwayne Jones scored from 12 yards on an option run.

Washington then got the ball with 2:33 left on the clock and 75 yards to go for the score. Quarterback Damon Huard appeared to be leading his team to victory when Washington had first-and-goal on the Oregon 8-yard line. Huard dropped back to pass and was looking for Dave Janoski when Oregon cornerback Kenny Wheaton stepped in front of Huard's pass and returned it 97 yards for a touchdown.

The win was the first of two-straight for the Ducks.

■ WASHINGTON 17, OREGON 10

Washington came into the late-season contest as the No. 1 team in the nation, but it sure didn't play like it against Oregon.

The Oregon defense held the Washington offense to three first downs, three first-half points and 109 yards in total offense, yet lost. Head coach Rich Brooks called the loss in Seattle "one of the toughest losses we ever had."

While the Husky offense couldn't produce the points, it was the Husky special teams that carried the team. Washington returned a punt for a touchdown and also blocked a punt.

The win proved crucial to Washington's season.

"[We] eventually went 11-1 and were second in the nation and beat Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl," said Don James, former Husky head coach.

■ 1974: WASHINGTON 66, OREGON 0

In back-to-back years Oregon and Washington recorded the two most one-sided victories in the series' history.

In 1973 the Ducks couldn't do anything wrong in a 58-0 win in Eugene. "It was one of the longest afternoons of my career I know," said Jim Owens, former Husky head coach.

Just one year later Washington returned the favor with a 66-0 rout of the Ducks in Seattle. "It was really very unusual," Owens said of the two-year swing.

1948 PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE VOTE

■ OREGON DENIED TRIP TO ROSE BOWL AFTER VOTE

At the end of the 1948 season, Oregon and California were locked in a tie for the conference title. The Ducks were 7-0 in conference play, while Cal was 6-0. Oregon said it would travel to the Bay Area to play a playoff game to decide the conference champion, but the Golden Bears denied the Ducks offer. As a result, the conference champion would be chosen by a vote of Northwest schools.

Cal won the "election" by a vote of 7-3 and had its trip to the Rose Bowl.

"Washington had sort of a deciding vote and they voted for Cal," said Jerry Allen, the "Voice of the Ducks." "And so Oregon has naturally held that against Washington."
