last year's student incidental fee prices.

Q How much money will students pay next year?

A Next year's fees will depend upon how many budget increases the PFC will give programs this year. The more increases given, the more money each student will pay next year.

Q What programs are given money?

A Student organizations from the Star Wars Student Union to the Multi Cultural Center all receive student incidental fees.

Q How are programs approved?

A A program's mission statement is first approved by the ASUO Student Senate. After the program proves to the PFC that it has the ability to enhance the physical and cultural diversity of the student body, it qualifies for student incidental fee money. Programs are eligible to receive up to $300 during their first year on campus.

Q Which student groups did the student body vote to approve for funding last year?

A OSPIRG, United States Student Association, the Designated Driver Shuttle, Campus Recycling Program, Family Housing Infant and Toddler Care, the Family Center/ChildCare and the Career Center Facilities and Programs were all approved by student voters last year.

Q What is the PFC's budget for the 1996-97 school year?

A The PFC's budget allocation for ASUO programs is $2,319,228.

Cross: Attorney said cross 'should not be up on the hill'

a few were opposed."

Joel Corcoran, a University law student, feels the cross is important to local citizens.

"This was a unique case where there was a community strongly behind having the cross there," he said.

Attorney Bill Wheatley, who is defending the American Legion, said there should be tolerance and understanding for the cross.

"This should not be up on the hill where it can trouble non-Christians in the community," he said.

Wheatley, however, contends the cross' setting implies a different connotation that rejects the separation of church and state.
