Three suspects linked to Olympic bombing

1 SPOKANE, Wash. — Three men charged with several bombings and bank robberies in the Pacific Northwest also are being investigated for possible links to the Olympic Park bombing in Atlanta, a newspaper reported Sunday.

However, while anonymous Justice Department and FBI officials told The Spokesman-Review that the Spokane bombing suspects are being investigated in the Atlanta case, they cautioned that they have other leads and no solid suspects.

"At this point, they are our strongest lead in the Olympics bombing," one Justice Department official told the newspaper.

The three men are being held without bail on charges of robbing banks and bombing one of the banks, an abortion clinic and an office of The Spokesman-Review.

MLK murderer in need of liver transplant

2 NASHVILLE, Tenn. — James Earl Ray, jailed for the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., was hospitalized again over the weekend with chronic liver disease.

Ray was taken to the Nashville Memorial Hospital late Saturday in critical condition. His condition was upgraded to serious at about 6 p.m. Sunday, hospital spokeswoman Freda Herndon said.

Ray's lawyer, William Pepper, said earlier this month that Ray will die within months unless he gets a liver transplant.

Ray, 68, is not on the national liver transplant list and his supporters are searching for a donor.

This is Ray's third recent hospitalization outside prison.

Ray is serving a 99-year sentence in the April 1968 shooting of King.

Villagers toss goat from tower in Spain

3 MANGANESES DE LA POLVOROSA, Spain — Defying a government ban and animal rights protesters, villagers in northern Spain threw a goat from a church tower in keeping with an annual tradition.

People waiting below the 45-foot belfry caught the animal in a tarp and it apparently emerged uninjured.

The governor of the Zamora province banned the ritual in 1992, and villagers had to content themselves with using ropes to lower the goat.

Last year, the village's new mayor, Demetrio Prieto, defied the ban and allowed the goat to be tossed from the belfry.

He said that the townspeople could not enjoy their tradition when lowering the goat because they were too worried about whether it was properly tied or if it would unexpectedly fall.
