Celebration: Event to include demonstrations etables, among others. For a fee they can also gain hands-on experience with wood block painting and paper-making.

Those who wish to refine their culinary skills can do so with the aid of Kikkoman International cooking demonstrations, which will begin at 11:30 a.m. each day. Chicken curry, satay chicken hot pot, and turon na saging (fried bananas) are some of the dishes that will be taught. The demonstrations will take place during the entire day, with new delicacy cooked every 45 minutes.

Martial art demonstrations will be given both days in the performance hall. Visitors will be able to learn the differences between the various forms, such as Chinese Kung Fu and Tae Kwon Do.

"The celebration should be appealing to a lot of people because it uses all five senses," Matsushi said. "You will have the chance to see dances you otherwise wouldn't see, you can taste foods you otherwise wouldn't get to taste, you can hear music that you otherwise wouldn't hear."

The event will begin Saturday morning with an opening ceremony during which a Chinese dragon will roam through the venue to ward off the evil spirits. After the dance, Eugene Mayor Jim Torrey and Springfield Mayor Bill Morissette will deliver official greetings in the exhibit hall.

A traditional wedding parade unfold on the main stage at 2 p.m. each day. Attire from a variety of Asian countries will be modeled by Malaysian and Indonesian University students.

The Asian-American Foundation of Oregon will have a silent auction during both days. Items up for bid will include Asian jewelry and artifacts as well as gift certificates. The auction will raise money for Asian cultural activities as well as for educational scholarships and the Asian cultural center.

Admission for the event is $3 per day. Children ages 12 and under will be admitted free.
