Film Forum shows bargain movies

The Cultural Forum shows a variety of movies each weekend, including films from the University Queer Film Festival

You pay thousands of dollars per year and probably put yourself into a great deal of debt for the privilege of calling yourself a student. You might as well take advantage of the perks.

One of the lesser-known perks available on campus is the opportunity to see a movie at the EMU Cultural Forum's Film Series. Where else can you catch a film on the big screen for only $2 on a Friday night?

The Film Forum runs a series of about ten films each term. The schedule usually has an emphasis on foreign films, independent efforts and cult classics. The films, shown in Room 180 PLC, are generally shown on Friday nights at 8 p.m.

This weekend, the Film Forum has a full menu of events planned, including the conclusion of the Fifth Annual University of Oregon Queer Film Festival.

Tonight the winners of the festival's Film and Video Competition will present their films at 7:30 p.m. On Saturday night, the film When Night Is Falling will run at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The festival will end Sunday when Academy Award-winning director Debra Chasnoff presents It's Elementary at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $5 for general admission and $4 for students.

The Film Forum has three films left on its regular schedule this term, plus one special presentation. On Saturday, the cult classic The Rocky Horror Picture Show will be shown at midnight. A pre-show presentation featuring local Rocky Horror cast Forbidden Fruit will begin at 11 p.m.

The show will take place in 150 Columbia and will cost $5 for general admission and $4 for students. Filmgoers who show up in costume will receive a $1 discount.

The Cultural Forum's Film Series is a great way to see some interesting films that you otherwise wouldn't have the chance to see on the big screen anymore.

The Film Forum is run by students, so the selections each term are usually all worthwhile films that students will enjoy.
