DOING IT...

SIDELINES

Did your invitation to Lil' Penny's Super Bowl party get lost in the mail? Here's another chance to hang out with Anfernee Hardaway's alter ego: The Lil' Penny World Tour is coming to campus. Come hang with Lil' Penny and me, your NIKE student rep, at the courtyard outside Gilbert Hall. Get your picture taken with the little guy and show all your friends how tight you and Lil' Penny really are . . . Did you know that the Recreation and Intramural Department offers punch cards for its aerobics/fitness classes? These cards are simple to use. All you do is show up to your favorite RIM fitness classes and get your card punched. Cards are available in several amounts: 10, 20, 30, or unlimited punches. RIM fitness classes are for men and women of all fitness levels. Call the RIM office at 346-4113 or stop by 102 Esslinger to find out more.

The pageantry. The emotion. The uniting of athletes from around the world . . . (oh all right, around campus):

THE 1997 SWOOSH CHALLENGE IS COMING

This is not a company picnic. Teams of six students (three men, three women) will compete in a series of events including a mini-triathlon, flag football, and Speed Agility Quickness (S.A.Q.) stations. Winning teams from around the country will be flown to NIKE WHQ in Beaverton to compete for the Swoosh Challenge championship.

The Swoosh Challenge will take place April 22-23. See your Recreation Center to pick up an entry form. Individual entrants are welcome; if you don't have a team lined up, we'll help you find one. Twenty students who sign up their teams for the Swoosh Challenge will receive a pair of NIKE shoes for themselves and t-shirts for their teammates.

DOING IT...

Growing up in sunny California's Pacific Palisades usually means learning how to swim. But where most are content with simply treading water, a select few are interested in taking this pastime a bit farther.

Corinne Stauff first heard the call of competitive swimming at age 7. Within five years, Stauff was dominating the pool in the 200-meter backstroke, 100-meter backstroke, and 500-meter freestyle. Yet Stauff felt compelled to test the water even further.

Enter water polo.

Stauff plunged into water polo at age 12, and by her teens she was the only female member of her high school water polo team. She has trained under current Olympic Men's Water Polo coach Dick Corso.

Today, Stauff's aggressive spirit and experience are on display at the University of Oregon. She and the rest of the Women's Water Polo Team practice their aquatic discipline in Layton Pool, where they are preparing to represent and defend the U of O in the 1997 season.

If any rival teams dare make their way to the water's edge, that is.
