Portland Center Celebrates 10th Anniversary

The University's Portland Center is turning ten, and the Oregon Duck mascot is going to the party.

President Dave Frohnmyer, the Oregon Duck mascot and various community leaders are scheduled to attend the 10th anniversary celebration on March 21 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Festivities include an open house and free computer classes for alumni and friends of the University.

Frohnmyer will host the reception for alumni and friends from 6-8 p.m. in the center's Lecture Hall. An award will be presented to the University by Ron Fortune, secretary-treasurer of the Northwest Oregon Central Labor Committee,

AFL-CIO, for its response to the need to provide services in Portland to working people. The University Labor Education and Research Center has an office at the University's Portland Center that offers programs and services to Portland-area workers.

The Center, located at 720 S.W. Second Ave., opened its doors in 1987. It offers a variety of services including professional degree programs, continuing education, special events coordination for alumni and athletics, and a host of workshops, conferences and concerts.

Orbis Goes Online

Checking out a book just got a little easier for more than 50,000 students, faculty and staff currently affiliated with 12 Pacific Northwest academic libraries.

Books belonging to the five OS-SHE campuses and seven private institutions in Oregon and southeastern Washington are now available, online, via the Orbis unified library catalog system, headquartered at the University Knight Library.

By simply connecting to the Orbis union catalog, finding the item wanted and filling in on-screen instructions, students and educators can now access the four million books and other circulating items any time they please, Orbis coordinators said.

Orbis can be found at <http://orbis.uoregon.edu>.
