

Student Senate holds short meeting

■ SENATE: The group went over several minor items and made a motion against Senator Michael Bieker

After much debate about meeting attendance quorum requirements, the senate met for a very brief meeting on Wednesday night in the EMU Board Room to discuss upcoming activities on campus. Additionally, a motion to reprimand Senator Michael Bieker for non-fulfillment of duties was made and seconded.

Senator Kanealii Osorio reported that there was enough money in the fund-raising account to have an end of the year senate party. The ombudsman, Ben Unger, was not present to give an ombudsman report.

The academic council did not meet, senator Sadie Rogers said, but the senate was reminded that the Student Conduct Code changes will be reviewed by the University Senate soon.

Senators Geneva Wortman and Doug Baker reported that the EMU Board will be changing the names of the Cedar Rooms next year. The rooms will be named after the Oregon rivers Rogue, Motolius, Alsea, Coquille and Umpqua. Baker also responded to a question concerning Footnotes' decision to move out of the EMU. Baker reported that the Footnotes' decision to move had nothing to do with the EMU Board.

The Computer Support Technology Committee reported that computers were currently being handed out to programs.

Senate Rules Committee members stated that they were awaiting word from Senate President Kulpna Krishnamurthy on when the next Rules Committee would be.

The Programs Finance Committee reported that they were in the process of putting together transition materials and there may be a meeting sometime next week with the new Programs Finance Committee officers.

During the announcement period, Senator Sari Wisch reminded the senate that Holocaust Remembrance week activities were continuing and she thanked those on the senate who helped to read names.

Wortman reported that a number of people would be traveling to Salem on Monday at 8 a.m. to hear and lobby against House Bill 36-44, which will take the University's control over incidental fees away and give the control over to the Oregon State System of Higher Education.

Jenna Wasson approached the senate to urge them all to e-mail, write letters and call University Senators to show support for the Student Conduct Code changes.

A motion to bring Senator Michael Bieker up for non-fulfillment of duties was motioned and seconded.

Meeting: Cedar Rooms could be renamed

panding soccer field space "to meet growing demands," said Sandy Vaughn, Club Sports recreational coordinator. "There is no place else to go for sports fields. Programs are being turned away."

The south bank soccer field could be expanded approximately 25 yards, which would cost about $30,000 and would allow more flexibility for club sports such as rugby to practice and have games, Vaughn said. The board approved the request for Club

Sports to go to the Student Senate to ask for the funding, and board member Doug Baker recommended that the request be made from the senate Over-Realized fund. In addition, the Riverfront Research Park must decide whether to allow for the expansion because the property was given to the park for all decision-making.

Also on the board's agenda was a renaming of the Cedar Rooms A-F to names of Oregon rivers, including titles such as Coquille, Umpqua and the Rogue.

Footnotes was also discussed briefly, and the board was told that if the business refuses its new space location in the EMU, the board will decide what other organization(s) will occupy the space. "That's [Footnotes'] decision to make, so we'll let them make it," EMU Director Dusty Miller said.

The board also discussed a bid for space from Council Travel. The bid includes perks such as two $500 scholarships and $10,000 to advertise on campus.
