WEDNESDAY'S TOPIC: Crime & Safety

Student threw bottle

Officers from the Eugene police department were dispatched to a criminal mischief call at Duck's Village on May 15 at about 1:08 a.m. to find a University student cornered in apartment O-171 by a group of subjects. According to police reports, the suspect, who was cornered in the apartment, had attended a party earlier in apartment T-219. He was kicked out of the party because he had been disorderly and had unintentionally caused damage to the resident's couch. After being kicked out, police said the suspect threw a beer bottle at the window of apartment T-219 and broke it. He was then chased through Duck's Village into the apartment of some friends of his in O-171. When officers arrived the suspect told police that he didn't remember being at the party and had been asleep for the last two hours. After a further investigation, the suspect admitted to having broken the window and told police that he was angry for having been kicked out. The suspect was charged and released.

Man caught speeding

A University student was observed by an officer from the Eugene police department driving his vehicle at high rates of speed between traffic lights on Franklin Boulevard at 12:53 a.m. on May 16. Police reports said the suspect consistently stopped near the middle of an intersection, so the officer paced his speed and found the suspect to be going 39 mph in a 25 mph speed zone. The officer activated his overhead lights, and the suspect accelerated away at speeds of up to 72 mph. After a brief pursuit through the West University area, the suspect finally pulled over to the right-hand side of the road. He was handcuffed and charged with attempting to elude a police officer. The officer asked the suspect why he didn't stop when he saw the overhead lights, and the suspect told the officer that he had the radio on and wasn't aware of him.

Stargazers arrested

Three people were found on the roof of the administration building of McArthur Court by officers from public safety on May 20 at 2:44 a.m. The students said they went up on the roof to "star gaze," even though they were aware of the sign that stated that the area was prohibited. Eugene police officers arrived at the request of the public safety officers and charged the three with trespassing.

Box of checks stolen

A box of checks was stolen from the mail while en route to a University student's apartment at 1750 Alder street. The student learned of the incident when his checking account was overdrawn by more than $1000. He called the bank, and they informed him that about ten of his checks had recently bounced, causing the account to be overdrawn. The student had no knowledge of the checks ever having been sent and told the bank that he did not order them. Police are calling the incident a third degree theft, but no suspect information is available at this time.

Box holds mushrooms

The office of public safety was alerted of a box that was traveling back and forth from Hamilton Complex to the post office when it was discovered that address listed on the box didn't exist. Upon opening it, officers found a small bag of illegal mushrooms. One subject attempted to pick up the package, according to reports, but was unsuccessful. When the person whose name was on the package was notified, police learned that he was not the person who tried to pick up the package. No one was charged.

Computer stuff taken

A computer and its accessories were stolen from 1761 Alder St., room 110, at about 3:45 p.m. on May 12. The victim told police that a colleague was supposed to pick up the package, but didn't, so he reported it stolen. The victim's room is located near the back door of the building.

Pizza seeker charged

A University student was charged with minor in possession when OPS officers found him intoxicated near Pizzano's at 3 a.m. on May 16. He told officers that he worked for the pizza shop and intended to go inside and make a pizza for himself and his friend. The officers from OPS requested that the charge go to student conduct and he be charged with minor in possession. He was cited and released.

Shoplifters stopped

Police charged two students with shoplifting when they were apprehended shortly after trying to leave the bookstore without paying for a pair of sunglasses and a necklace at 3:47 p.m. on May 13. When security personnel asked the student why she took the items she replied: "I was curious on how to steal and wanted to see if I could get away with it."

Resident loses things

A Eugene resident reported to police on May 18 that his car was broken into and a number of possessions were stolen while parked 751 E. 16th Avenue. The point of entry was a window and the total damage and stolen property was estimated to be worth $155.
