

Honor: Award was surprise for Goldrich month-old granddaughter Meghan walked over to give him a hug, helping Goldrich forget his embarrassment.

"That was the perfect moment to do so," said Meghan's mother and daughter of Goldrich, Gina Jones.

"This award is highly coveted and only given after careful screening and evaluation," Frohnmayer said.

Two other awards were also announced Tuesday. Barbara Altmann, assistant professor of Romance languages, and Robert Pena, assistant professor of architecture are the 1997 recipients of the Ersted Awards for Distinguished Teaching.

All three University professors will receive a stipend of $2,000, added annually to their salaries.

The Ersted Award, established in 1957, encourages and rewards exceptional teachers early in their careers. The salary increases are paid by the A.J. Ersted trust fund. The Herman Award for Distinguished Teaching honors senior faculty members who have achieved outstanding records as teachers.

Both students and faculty members make the recommendations for the awards, and narrated student evaluations are used as a main source for evidence in giving this award.

Altmann teaches medieval French literature and language in the Romance language department. She was selected by students and colleagues for her "rigor, passion, patience and vision" in teaching, said one committee member in a written press release.

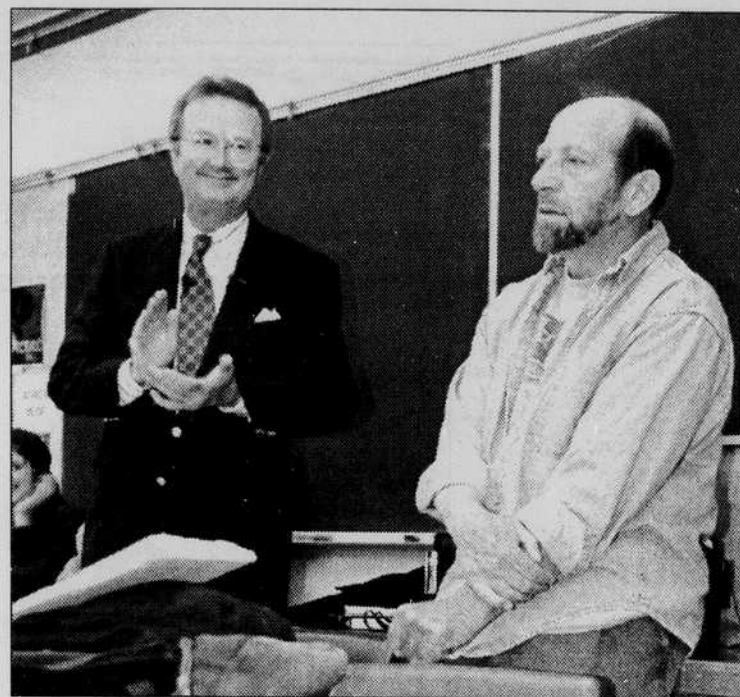

Pena's commitment to teaching and to the environment are a few of the reasons he was selected. As one of three faculty members at the School of Architecture and Allied Arts who created the curriculum package, "Design with PV," Pena has helped provide better instruction in design. The program has been shared with 50 institutions of higher education in the United States and Canada.

Goldrich's passion for Latin-American politics inspires his students to learn, say his friends. Many students repeatedly register for classes taught by Goldrich solely because he is teaching them.

"He engages in the world and brings the world into the classroom," said Irene Diamond, a colleague of Goldrich's in the political science department.

"He thinks critically, he gets students to learn about other cultures and gets them to feel deeply," Diamond said. "He's really an example of a scholar activist."

President Dave Frohnmayer presented the Herman Award for Distinguished Teaching to Daniel Goldrich, a political science professor.
