Girl found on top of Hayward's scoreboard

1 An underage girl, apparently from Indio, Calif., was found Oct. 6 at 3:54 p.m. on top of the scoreboard at Hayward Field.

The girl, who spoke to police through a Spanish-speaking translator, said she climbed the scoreboard because she thought there was a swing on top of it.

It was later discovered that the 16-year-old girl had traveled to Eugene on a Greyhound bus with a friend who could not be located.

The girl appeared to be fearful of uniformed officers, and police considered the possibility that she could be an illegal alien from Mexico. Her family could not be identified or located.

The girl was placed in a home in Cottage Grove through the help of the Children's Services Division and Cahoots, a crisis counseling intervention service dealing with non-criminal action.
