know about the fee change, or they don't mind.

"In general, they think it's great [not to pay $10 at the door], but they don't realize they're paying in a big way," she said. "If it's not out of their pockets, so-to-speak, then it's okay. They're used to paying more fees."

The design and development stage of the project is currently done, Lobissor said. They will finish the construction documents and then begin demolition of the current facilities in late spring and early summer.

A comment session and open house will be held tonight from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the Knight Library Browsing Room. User group members and the architects working on the project will attend. Radcliffe said this session will allow anyone interested in the proposed building plans to review and react to drawings and renderings that will be available for people to look at.

"We take all of the comments very seriously," she said. "The last session we had we compiled them all together and typed them up. We looked at every detail and took them into consideration."

Women's Center hosts health symposium

By Megan Turner
Higher Education Reporter

The ASUO Women's Center will be hosting its third annual Women's Health Symposium from Oct. 21 to 23. The symposium consists of several workshops and presentations that deal with a variety of women's issues.

Today at 4 p.m., a workshop entitled "Scholarship and Loan Opportunities for Women," presented by Elizabeth Bickford from the Financial Aid Office, will be held in Century Room D of the EMU. At 5 p.m., Joy Lum of the Counseling Center will make a presentation titled "When Love is a Pain: Domestic Violence in Asian-American Families." From 7 to 9 p.m. Susan Doyle will be teaching "Self Defense for Women" in 244 Gilbert.

On Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m., several presenters will speak at "Contracts and Courts: A Discussion of Rape Law" in Century Room D. From 7 to 9 p.m., an HIV-awareness workshop entitled "Protect Yourself!" will be offered in 137 Gilbert.

On Thursday, "Dating Violence: Know the Facts," will be presented by Womenspace at 4 p.m. in Century Room E of the EMU. Planned Parenthood will conduct a question and answer session on reproductive choices at 6 p.m. The symposium will end with an open-mike celebration at 7 p.m. in 137 Gilbert.

For more information, disability accommodations or to sign up, contact the ASUO Women's Center at 346-4095.

Grind ends because of noise complaints

Eugene police stopped the Third Annual Oregon Grind half an hour early Sunday after receiving several noise complaints.

Weapon of Choice, the headlining band, took the stage at 8 p.m. and police arrived at 8:45, said Debby Martin, Cultural Forum staff member. Police said they had received several complaints and compromised with Grind coordinators to stop the concert at 9:30 p.m. instead of the scheduled 10 p.m.

Eugene's noise ordinance has designated quiet hours from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. Any excessive noise outside of those hours can be subject to termination, Martin said.

The Grind was held on the field behind McArthur Court for the first time due to University administration requests.

The only other problem of the day was that Chief Broom, which has a substantial Eugene following, did not show up. The tour R.V. broke down in Utah, Martin said. The spot was filled by Eugene band The American Girls.
