Attack: Area generates many police calls

handgun. However, the case will now be forwarded to the Lane County District Attorney for review.

Reeves said he didn't find it unusual that Shaver had two weapons.

"He's lived in Eugene a long time. He reads the newspapers and sees the news. He is aware of the troubles that go on in that area and what he can run into," Reeves said. "It's not common [to carry two guns], but it doesn't speaking anything more."

Even though Shaver was successful in fending off his attackers, Roberts said carrying a weapon is not always the answer.

"It's a personal choice," he said. "I would tell people who are out walking around to be aware of their surroundings. Are there cars around? Where are they at? Are they in a dark area or in a populated area?"

Roberts said the reason for the attack was because Long and Durrett perceived Shaver to be a drug dealer and they intended to take away a duffel bag he was carrying. However, Roberts said there is no evidence that Shaver is a drug dealer. But he said this could have been assumed because of the area Shaver was walking through.

"We know the area has generated a lot of calls for service nighttime and daytime," Roberts said. "The police department continues to see that and to focus in on the area as much as it can."

Recycling is elementary.

Somewhere along the line we learned how to recycle. And now, recycling on campus is as easy as putting your bottles, cans and newspapers in the right places. Heck, you learned how to do that in preschool. You just didn't know you'd be tested on it later.
