Defense lifts Huskies past Xavier

Washington's win over the Musketeers was its first NCAA Tournament win in 14 years

WASHINGTON — Washington committed 26 turnovers and missed 11 of 21 free throws, yet still managed to win its first NCAA Tournament game in 14 years.

The 11th-seeded Huskies did it with defense, forcing 17 turnovers of their own and holding Xavier to one field goal in the final 9:53. The clincher came when 7-footers Patrick Femerling and Todd MacCulloch both got a hand on the ball as T.J. Johnson attempted a buzzer-beating layup, preserving Thursday's 69-68 victory over the sixth-seeded Musketeers.

"The description of what this month is, March Madness,"

Washington coach Bob Bender said. "We're a team that sometimes wins without the stat sheet backing it up."

"It came down to one thing. We had to have one stop. So the offensive stats don't bear it out, but at least we got the one stop that made the difference."

It was Washington's first NCAA victory since Detlef Schrempf led a victory over Duke in 1984, and Bender's first ever as a head coach.

"This is really special," said Bender, who played on Final Four teams with Indiana and Duke. "How many teams get to come back and practice another day?"

The game-winning shot was Deon Luton's 17-foot jumper from the left wing with 11.2 seconds to play, ending a ragged possession that was supposed to get the ball inside. It was typical of Washington's game-long frustration against Xavier's quick defense, but the Huskies (19-9) kept responding with defensive plays of their own and never let the Musketeers (22-8) get into their running game.

"We would make a steal and sometimes fumble it right back to them," Xavier coach Skip Prosser said. "Credit their defense for that."

Gary Lumpkin's two free throws gave Xavier the lead with 42.5 remaining, even though the Musketeers had gone nearly seven minutes without a field goal.

After Luton put Washington ahead, Xavier had two shots to win it in the waning seconds. Lumpkin threw up an air ball, and Johnson's layup attempt off an inbounds pass was blocked as time expired.
