NCAA: Kentucky comes to final with new coach

 at 38 percent.

"We look to go out and keep teams under 60 points, and if we can do that we have a great chance of winning the game," Utah junior guard Andre Miller said.

Even though this is Kentucky's third straight championship game — the first team to do that since Duke from 1990-92 — the Wildcats (34-4) may have changed more than the Utes (30-3).

Gone to the NBA are former Wildcats Antoine Walker, Ron Mercer, Tony Delk and Derek Anderson. Even with the loss of All-American Keith Van Horn, the Utah roster with Doleac, Miller and sophomore forward Hanno Mottola may have more future NBA players than Kentucky. And the Wildcats, who beat Stanford 86-85 in overtime Saturday, have a new coach in Smith, a former assistant to Rick Pitino.

"There was no doubt in my mind we could get back to the Final Four because I know how hard our guys work," said Kentucky junior center Nazr Mohammed.

And the work got even harder when Smith started making changes to Pitino's style of pressure defense and three-point shooting. The Wildcats still do those things but not at the same level, although they did use the tactics to come back from a 17-point second-half deficit against Duke.

"Kentucky was the No. 1 defensive team in the Southeastern Conference last season and was No. 1 again this season," Smith said.
