

Take advantage of Eugene before entering 'real world'

One can never get enough of a good thing.

That's exactly how I'm feeling as my short stay in Eugene of just over two years is coming to a close.

Before I came here in the spring of 1996, I knew Eugene was a fun town, but I didn't expect this. There's so much to do; whether you like to run, walk, hike, fish, shoot hoops or just spend a day on the golf links, Eugene has a lot to offer. And I think a lot of students don't take advantage of it.

For an avid sports fan, not too many places can top Eugene.

I find it hard to beat watching Oregon's football team pound on the defenseless Beavers at Autzen. Or Henry Madden and the men's basketball team beat the cocky UCLA Bruins one more time.

Or watching one of the best collegiate track and field programs in the nation compete at Hayward Field. But nothing tops what pleasure the Prefontaine Classic brings to me and many others in this community. What a meet!

There are a few people I need to give credit to before I leave Eugene.

I want to thank administrative Lt. Joan Saylor, Sgt. Rick Gilliam, retired Sgt. David Poppe and associate director Tom Hicks of the Office of Public Safety for helping me obtain the police reports for my weekly Police Beat column. I realize they have busy schedules, too, and I appreciate their help.

I can't forget journalism professors Dean Rea and Wayne Wanta. These two gentlemen have helped me improve my writing and my understanding of what it means to be a complete journalist.

I also want to say thanks to Eric Collins and Mike Burnham, my desk editors this year. These guys have worked long hours at the paper, and I appreciate that. Thanks for the help.

And to the front office staff at the Emerald: You are great. Keep up the good work.

And thanks to Jim Dunne for being the most down-to-earth instructor I've ever had. He cares about his students, and he does what he can to help them in his classes. He knows what it takes for students to get to this level, and he believes we deserve the best teaching we can get.

Thank you to Pamela Sirianni for all the good times we've had. I know the best is yet to come. Thanks for everything.

As much as I'm going to miss Eugene, I realize after five years in college that it's time to move on to the "real world."

I've accepted a job in my hometown as the sports editor at the Molalla Pioneer. This is going to be a great place for me to start, and hopefully it will lead to bigger and better things down the road.

To all the people who have helped me along the way and made my time here fun, I say thanks.

Don't forget to experience Eugene before you have to leave. You'll wish you had when the "real world" comes knocking at your door.
