with his tennis, but with his character and his personality. He's going to do some good stuff for us."

Devillers' game is so strong that he will be one of three Oregon players who Russell takes to the All American Tournament in Austin, Texas, beginning Oct. 10. The tournament brings together the top 250 players in the nation for eight days of competition.

"It's a very competitive field," Russell said. "If someone does well in it, it really gives him a lot of confidence. There are a lot of good players, so it allows us to taste that level. It's good because it makes us set our sights a little higher."

Navarro and Carter will also represent Oregon at the tournament. It will be a return trip for each of them. Last year Carter advanced past the first round, while Navarro was tripped up in his first match.

The women also begin their season at the All-American Tournament, which runs Oct. 17 through Oct. 25 in Los Angeles. The Ducks haven't enjoyed a tremendous amount of success at this tournament in the past, but Griffin believes this year's team has the ability to hold its own with the nation's best.

"It's a tough tournament," he said, "but I think the level of our team has also taken a big step."
