Cardinal seeks pot of gold on road

By Tim Pyle
 Oregon Daily Emerald

Stanford (1-3 overall, 0-2 Pacific-10 Conference) at No. 23 Notre Dame (2-1)

The road does not get any easier for the Cardinal, a week after being demolished in Eugene.

The Fighting Irish will seek revenge for the 33-15 drubbing they endured in Palo Alto, Calif., against Stanford last season. In that game, the Cardinal smashed Notre Dame for 322 rushing yards and 514 yards of total offense. Stanford has also won two of its last three games at Notre Dame Stadium in South Bend, Ind.

Arizona State (2-2, 1-1) at No. 21 Southern California (3-1, 1-0)

The Sun Devils have regained their confident swagger following a dominating 24-3 win last week.

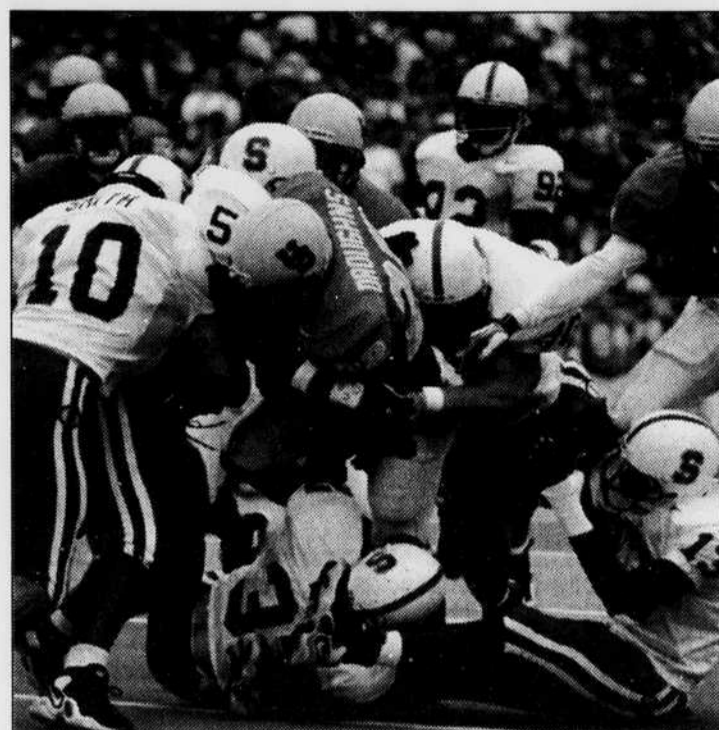

But that win was against Oregon State.

The Trojans will provide Arizona State with a legitimate test to see if the Sun Devils have truly improved since their early-season struggles.

Arizona State tailback J.R. Redmond, like the rest of his team, has yet to live up to preseason expectations. Redmond's 85.3 rushing yards and 171.3 all-purpose yards per game are not the Heisman Trophy numbers that forecasters were expecting.

USC's formidable defense, led by linebacker Chris Claiborne, does not want to host Redmond's breakout party.

Washington State (3-1, 0-1) at No. 4 UCLA (2-0, 0-0)

Nick Medley/Emerald

Stanford will have to rely on more than just gang tackles to beat Notre Dame in South Bend Saturday.

The Bruins could be rusty after their scheduled game at Miami last weekend was canceled because of Hurricane Georges.

But that should not matter.

UCLA, which has a school-record 12-game win streak dating back to last season, is not about to let its national- and conference-championship dreams be shattered by the rebuilding Cougars.

Last season, Washington State needed a goal-line stand in the fourth quarter to beat the Bruins, a win that eventually landed the Cougars in the Rose Bowl. This season, Washington State needs a miracle.

Oregon State (2-2, 0-2) at Utah State (1-3)

So much for Roses.

After starting the season with two promising nonconference victories, the Beavers found out that they are still below par in the Pac-10 with two road losses.

But Oregon State should beat Utah State. Maybe there will be postgame Humanitarian talk.

Game of the Week

The Huskies look to beat Arizona after huge loss to Nebraska last week

By Tim Pyle
 Oregon Daily Emerald

No. 14 Arizona (4-0, 1-0) at No. 20 Washington (2-1, 1-0)

Although the season is still young, Saturday's showdown between the Huskies and Wildcats could prove to be monumental in the Pacific-10 Conference title chase.

More than a possible conference championship will be on the line for Washington. After being embarrassed 55-7 at Nebraska last Saturday, the Huskies will be trying to re-bolster their pride.

Arizona may be licking its chops after watching film of that Washington massacre, but it should not get too confident. The Wildcats' lone win in seven games at Husky Stadium came 10 seasons ago.

The Huskies cruised to a 58-28 win over Arizona at Tucson in 1997 behind a balanced offensive attack. Washington quarterback Brock Huard threw for three first-half touchdown passes and led his team to 218 passing yards, 254 rushing yards and no turnovers. Speedster Ja'Warren Hooker set the tone by returning the opening kickoff 89 yards for a Husky touchdown.

However, this season the Wildcats rank first in the Pac-10 in scoring defense. They also boast an explosive offense, which includes the talented quarterback tandem of Keith Smith and Ortege Jenkins, prolific wide receivers Dennis Northcutt and Jeremy McDaniel and productive tailback Trung Canidate.

Washington's offense will be looking to re-establish itself after dropping to eighth in the conference in scoring. Huard, considered a top-5 NFL pick by many, looks primed for a huge game after two straight sub-par outings. Receiver Dane Looker is Huard's favorite target, leading the conference with nine catches per game.
