last season. Although undersized for a lineman at 6-foot-2, 248 pounds, Miller recorded six tackles for loss and one sack last season and has started all five games this season.

"Sometimes it opens up, and other times it doesn't, and today it opened up a few times," Miller said. "I'd move, and the quarterback would be there, jumping up into where I was."

Griffin, on the other hand, spent the majority of the game bleeding through a puncture in his lower left lip. Griffin suffered the wound when his helmet came off in the air before he crashed to the Martin Stadium turf with the ball in hand.

The catch, a 43-yard bomb to the one yard line that set up the Ducks' second score of the game, was actually made by two players. Cougar safety Lamont Thompson gained control as well, but Griffin was awarded the catch due to "simultaneous possession," in which the offense is always awarded the ball.

"We just got tangled up," Griffin said. "Once my helmet came off, I was just trying to protect myself, so when we were rolling on the ground I was like, 'Hey, you can have it,' because I was trying to protect my head. I knew once we were tangled up the ball was mine, because tie goes to the receiver."

Griffin wasn't sure of the number of stitches required to close the wound, which was closed at halftime.

"My tooth went straight through my mouth, and I've got braces, which didn't help," Griffin said. "I took Novocain, and I didn't feel anything, so I didn't care how many stitches it took, as long as it stopped the bleeding."

Men come back to tie OSU for first place

The men's golf team was enroute to another first-place finish after the first round of competition at the Nevada Wolf Pack Classic, while the No.10 women found themselves struggling after day one of the Northwest Invitational.

Tied with Oregon State for first place, the men finished with a team score of 577. If the Ducks can pull ahead and win the invitational tomorrow, it will be their third consecutive first-place victory.

Head coach Steve Nosler attributed the team's success on Monday to an all-around effort. Not one of the Ducks shot under par on Monday morning, but the team came together and was able to catch up to the Beavers, who were 10 strokes up.

Adrian Burtner finished the day in second place with a score of 142. Burtner led the Ducks' comeback against OSU by tying the tournament-low score of 68 in the second set of 18 holes.

Andrew Tredway and Ben Crane were tied for 16th-place with a score of 146, and Derek Croskrey finished in an eight-way tie for 30th with a score of 149. Ryan Lavoie, who usually leads the Ducks, finished tied for 49th with a score of 153.

Jeff Barney, who is playing as an individual, finished tied for 21st with a score of 147.

"On almost every round we've had all five or six guys right in it," Nosler said. "All of the sudden one guy hasn't left us naked out there. Everyone's stayed in it pretty well, and I think that's why we've been successful."

The women finished day one of the Northwest Invitational in fourth-place with a team score of 609.

Pam Sowden led the Ducks in seventh place with a score of 149. Jerilyn White finished tied for 13th with a score of 152, Dawn Berry finished tied for 15th with a
