Beavers need miracle to upset Huskies

By Tim Pyle
Oregon Daily Emerald

Oregon State (4-3 overall, 1-3 Pac-10) at Washington (4-2, 2-1)

On the strength of 20 wins in the last 21 meetings between these Northwest rivals, the Huskies have doubled up the Beavers in the all-time series with a 52-26-4 edge.

The last time Oregon State won in Seattle was also the last time it beat Washington period — 1985. As is generally the case with the Beavers, not many of the numbers favor them.

For Oregon State to have a chance at a monumental victory in this game, it cannot afford to make mistakes such as the four fumbles it lost in a 28-7 home loss to Arizona last Saturday.

Beaver quarterback Terrance Bryant, who was knocked out of last week's game with back problems, is expected to start against the Huskies. Former quarterback Tim Alexander, who averages almost 122 all-purpose yards, and Greg Ainsworth are Bryant's top wideouts.

Tailback Ken Simonton was held to 36 rushing yards by the Wildcats, causing his yards-per-game average to dip to less than 97.

Defensive end Inoke Breckter-field, linebacker Bryan Jones and cornerback Andrae Holland make the majority of Oregon State's big defensive plays.

Breckterfield paces the team with nine tackles for a loss, including five sacks. Jones is fifth in the conference in tackles per game with 8.6. Holland has broken up 12 passes, intercepting three of them.

The Washington offense has yet to live up to its preseason billing and is ranked eighth in the conference.

After missing two games with a separated shoulder, quarterback Brock Huard may return to the starting lineup for the Huskies. If Huard is not ready, Marques Tuiasosopo will start for the third straight week.

Former walk-on Dan Looker is Washington's top receiver. He is averaging more than six receptions for more than 75 yards.

Defensively, the Huskies will try to repeat their stellar performance of a week ago when they sacked California quarterback Justin Vedder 13 times in a 21-13 win. Linebacker Todd Johnson and nose tackle Jabari Issa pace the defense — and are tied for first in the Pac-10 — with seven sacks apiece.

Joe Jarzynka, a one-man special teams whirlwind, returned a punt 91 yards for a touchdown against California. He is second in the conference in punt-return average at 12 yards per attempt. Jarzynka has also been doubling as Washington's place kicker the past two games and is a perfect two for two on field goals.

Oregon State will have to play its best game in a long time to upend the Huskies at hostile Husky Stadium. In other words, Washington should be celebrating its 11th straight Beaver skinning come Saturday night.

Northeast Louisiana (2-4) at No. 14 Arizona (6-1, 3-1)

The only suspense in this laughter is whether the Wildcats can cover the point spread, which is 34 points in their favor.

With the quarterback tandem of Keith Smith and Ortege Jenkins throwing to wideouts Jeremy McDaniel and Dennis Northcutt and running backs Kelvin Eafon, Leon Callen and Trung Canidate slashing through the defense, Arizona should put plenty of points on the scoreboard.

But can the Wildcat defense stop the Indians? The bet here is yes.

Game of the Week

By Tim Pyle
Oregon Daily Emerald

UCLA (5-0, 3-0) at Cal (4-2, 2-1)

Coming off their Oregon scare, the No. 2 Bruins should be counting their lucky stars. But they better not be looking up at the sky or checking out the walk of fame for too long because a much-improved Golden Bear team would love nothing more than to beat them for the first time since 1994.

Despite its 21-13 loss at Washington last Saturday, Cal proved again that it cannot be taken lightly this season by rallying from a 21-0 deficit to make the Huskies sweat. The Bears, who are ranked first in the Pac-10 in total defense and scoring defense, held the Washington offense to just four first downs and 70 yards in the second half.

Cal's impressive linebacking corps is led by senior Albert Dorsey, who averages 8.2 tackles, and junior Sekou Sanyika, who leads the Pac-10 in tackles for a loss with 17.

Quarterback Justin Vedder completes nearly half of his 200 yards per game to wide receiver Dameane Douglas, who is tied for first in the conference with 7.67 receptions per game. Tailback Marcus Fields provides what little running game the conference's worst-ranked rushing offense can muster.

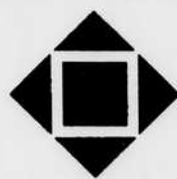

UCLA Heisman Trophy candidate Cade McNown, fresh off throwing for 395 yards against Oregon, leads the offense, which is rolling up nearly 500 yards per game. He is passing for an average of 285 yards and has thrown 10 touchdown passes.

Wideouts Danny Farmer, who leads the Pac-10 with 105.8 receiving yards per game, and Brian Poli-Dixon provide McNown with capable targets. The Bruins' three-headed rushing attack — consisting of Jermaine Lewis, DeShaun Foster and Keith Brown — has been temporarily reduced to two because of Foster's knee injury.

Free safety Larry Atkins, who leads the team with 37 tackles, and linebacker Brendon Ayanbadejo, who paces UCLA with five sacks, are the Bruins' marquee defensive players.

Surprising Cal has nothing to lose in this game, but it is still likely to end up with its third loss. The fact of the matter is that UCLA has too many weapons to be gunned down by the Bears.
