Peterson later received a pass from teammate Stacey Tullock. Fox charged again, and Peterson's shot glanced off the right post.

Just more than five minutes into the second half, Fox stymied Peterson on another scoring opportunity. After Peterson eluded Oregon defenders, Fox slid to her right to save Peterson's low shot.

"The key was that we maintained a fairly high level of play throughout," Steffen said. "It was the kind of game where we dominated the midfield, and they dominated the penalty areas."

A frustrated Terri Patraw, Arizona State's head coach, had only one comment as she left the field amid a downpour following the game.

"Two words: officiating and rain," Patraw said.

The Ducks did not begin the weekend on such a splendid note.

For the second straight game,

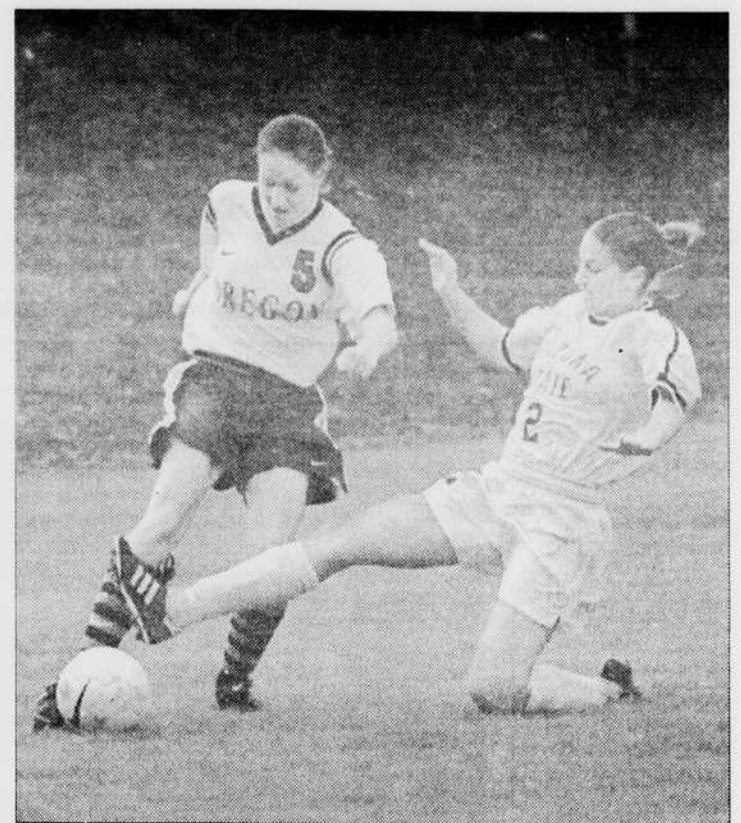

Oregon let Arizona within the first minute of play as the Wildcats took an early lead on Jill Micone's goal 27 seconds into the game.

Arizona forward Nikki Jones battled through Duck fullback Starr Johnson's tackle to set up Kimberly McGehee's third goal of the season.

Despite being in a 2-0 hole so quickly, Oregon did not fold.

Eight minutes into the game, forward Chalise Baysa ended the drought that had seen the Ducks score in only one of their five games. Baysa chased down a long pass and scored her eighth goal of the season. Midfielder Kristi Morris tallied the first of her two goals for the afternoon — and season — when she blasted a right-footed shot into the right corner of the net. Marsh and Erin Anderson were credited with assists.

Anderson capped Oregon's highest scoring half of the season and put the Ducks ahead to stay when she headed home Aly Hill's cross. In the second half, Morris accounted for Oregon's final goal when she headed Gangnes' corner kick into the Arizona goal.
