Third round proves to be end for Ducks

In its second tournament of the year, three members of the Oregon women's tennis team advanced to the third round of the Rolex Regional Championships in Palo Alto, Calif.

But they weren't able to advance any farther, as each lost Friday in straight sets.

Adeline Arnaud, a freshman from France, lost to the tournament's No. 1 seed in straight sets, as she faltered against California's Amanda Augustus 6-2, 6-4.

Her French teammate, red-shirt freshman Sarah Colistro, also ran into tough competition in the third round. She lost to No. 17 Francesca La'o from California, 7-6, 6-1. To reach the third round, Colistro beat Washington's Peggy Wu in three sets, 6-2, 0-6, 6-4.

Janice Nyland, also a freshman, fell to No. 13 Anita Kuri-may from California, 6-0, 6-2.

Oregon's Alli White records one of her game-high 20 kills past Washington setter Angie Short in White's last career appearance at McArthur Court on Saturday.

recorded 17 kills, the Huskies were able to stay alive in the tournament chase.

"We are just taking it one game at a time," Laffing said. "Today we just wanted to improve on errors and things that we struggled with against OSU."

Oregon was led by White and freshman Monique Tobbagi who led all attackers with 20 kills. The Ducks have no chance of post season play, but needed a win to prove they are a team to be reckoned with.

"This is the best team I've played with since I've been here," White said. "It's frustrating because I know we're good enough to beat these teams. We proved it against Arizona. That was not a fluke."

On Friday, the Ducks dropped a four-game decision to Washington State, 15-13, 15-5, 15-10, 15-11. Tobbagi recorded a career-high 23 kills and committed only 5 errors for an overall attack percentage of .450. Oregon had four players who recorded 10 or more kills, but the Cougars out killed the Ducks 80-67.

Washington State was led by Wendy Rouse, who had no problem filling in for the injured Jennifer Stinson. Rouse led all attackers with 25 kills and hit an impressive .429.

"I am not pleased with the way we played tonight considering how we've been playing," Nelson said.

But for the Oregon seniors, who end their home schedule on a low note, the season isn't over yet.
