be a $10 minimum first deposit, said Joel Woodruff, UO card manager.

The office will collect old ID cards rather than running current IDs through the card machine, Woodruff said.

Student Shari Takara speculated that one day the system should expand benefits to students in housing, as well.

"It would also be helpful if you could use your ID for washers [in the residence halls], because it's hard to always have quarters," she said.

Campus Cash is in its first phase, which focuses on using the card for direct purchases.

The next phases add the card system into vending machines and arcade games and hope to expand to include use at the University Bookstore.

Campus Cash

Starting Jan. 4, people can trade their old ID card for a new ID with Campus Cash at the UO Card office in EMU room 12.

Campus Cash will be accepted at all food outlets in the EMU and Lawrence and Willamette halls. The EMU ticket office, recreation center and craft center will also accept Campus Cash.

"The intention is for it to be utilized in other applications around campus," Woodruff said. "This has the potential to be a full-campus card operation."

The card system has taken a long time to get to the University, EMU Director Dusty Miller said.

"Frankly, it's passé," Miller said.

The University debit cards are starting in an established process, Woodruff said.

"There are campuses that have been doing this for 15 years," he said

The system was put in motion as soon as possible, said Lee LaTour, EMU marketing coordinator.

"I wanted to launch it in January as opposed to spring because it's ready to go, and I didn't want to sit on it," LaTour said.

The marketing aspect is working on highlighting the convenience of the card.

"Every place that you can use it will have a big sign," LaTour said. "We want to make it as convenient as possible."

Bridge

"I like Mr. DeFazio, but I think if anything is named after him, it should be after he leaves office or dies — whichever comes first," Taylor said.

Councilman Pat Farr said the new name might take credit away from the people who made the bridge possible.

Mayor Jim Torrey said Bascom worked hard enough on the project to warrant putting her name on the bike bridge.

"It is not at all unlike Ms. Bascom to shove the high praise on someone else," he said.

But Torrey also said he recognizes how hard DeFazio worked to press former U.S. Sen. Mark Hatfield to push through federal funds for the bridge project.

Councilman Bobby Lee agreed.

"It is tough to be a congressman in charge of four counties," he said. "I think he deserves it. It is not fun at all being a congressman."

Lee read a sentence from the council agenda that said the bridge project and the new bike bridge would not exist without DeFazio.

"Assuming this sentence is true, I think he deserves it," he said.

Taylor said she understood Lee's opinion.

"I like Peter DeFazio. I know how hard he works," she said. "But I think we should have more time for other people to express their opinions."

Councilwoman Laurie Swanson Gribkov said DeFazio "ran the ball" to carry the funding through.

Torrey said he wanted consensus.

"I know we can find a way to make this a unanimous vote," Torrey said.

And when it came time to vote, no members of the council dissented.

The Emerald was unable to contact DeFazio for comment on the council's decision.
