

Track

will keep Oregon tough in the discus, hammer and shotput.

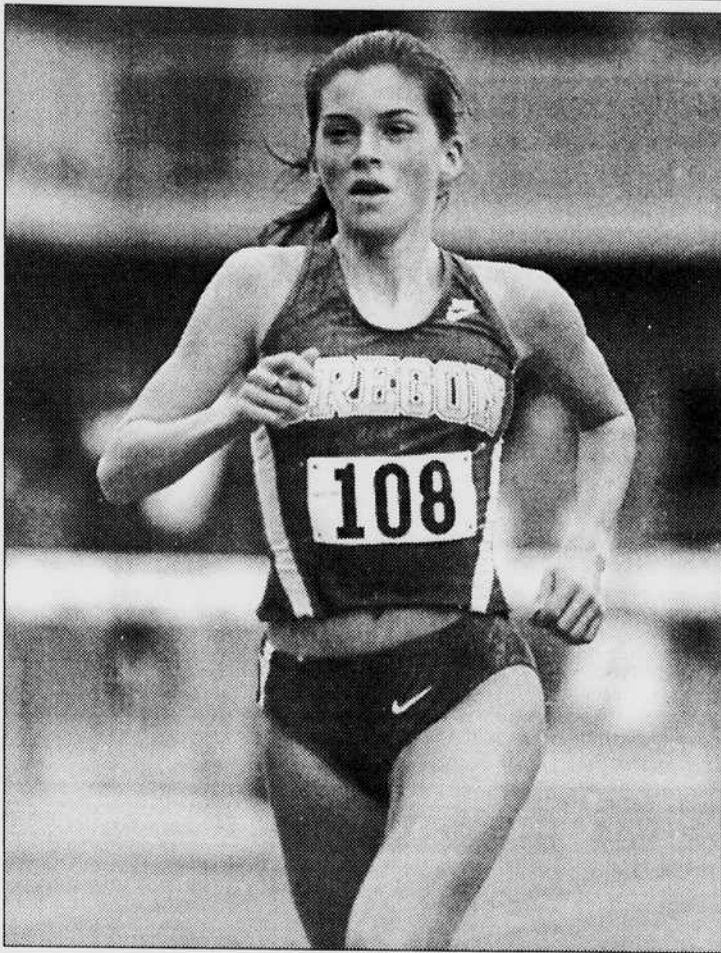

Last season, Morrison beat her college-best throw in the discus by more than 16 feet in what was her first prolonged period of good health for the Ducks. She went on to finish sixth at the Pac-10 meet.

Fisk had a successful season last year, regularly clearing 160 feet with each throw. After taking sixth in the Pac-10 in 1997, Fisk fell one place short of scoring at the Pac-10 meet.

Although the Oregon Preview is the official outdoor season opener, Heinonen views the meet as more of a stepping stone toward the meat of the season.

"This will be the first meet at home for the team this season, and the first for all of our newcomers at Hayward Field," Heinonen said. "Also, it will help sort out who goes to the Stanford Invitational [March 27-28], which is our first big one.

"Track is a lot of different things to different people. Each weekend has a different goal. In some meets, you run for the team while in others you run for yourself. The goals vary from week to week."

Back from a foot injury, Marie Davis will be at full strength in the Oregon Preview.
