White Oleander by Janet Fitch is a novel that haunts you, lingering in your mind long after you've finished it.

This is a portrait of an artist as a survivor of contemporary American culture. Raised by her narcissistic and elitist poet mother, Astrid, at age twelve, is wrenched from her mother's world when her mother is convicted of murder. Astrid's odyssey from foster home to foster home is a fascinating journey through social and economic layers of contemporary California. Her foster families and the communities they live in will become indelibly impressed upon your mind. Astrid's strength to survive will earn your respect. Beautifully written and highly recommended.

EDWARD HIRSCH (Reading & Booksigning)

Thurs., April 22nd
7:30pm • Browsing Room,
Knight Library

In How to Read a Poem and Fall in Love with Poetry, Edward Hirsch writes about what poetry is, why it matters, and how we can open up our imaginations to its message of vital importance in day-to-day life. A masterful work by a master poet, this brilliant summation of poetry and human nature will speak to all readers who long to place poetry in their lives but don't know how to read it. Sponsored by the Creative Writing Department.
