Health center screens for anxiety disorders

The Student Health Center is offering free screenings for anxiety disorders in honor of National Anxiety Disorders Screening Day today from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The health center in conjunction with the University Counseling Center is holding the confidential screenings to help individuals learn about anxiety disorders, their symptoms and effective treatments. The screening includes a video, questionnaire and information from professionals on various anxiety disorders and other mental illnesses.

For more information, call 346-4456.

ASUO collects campus safety suggestions

The ASUO is collecting student suggestions for ways to improve safety at the University. The ASUO Outreach team is asking students to drop their safety suggestions or concerns into a suggestion box on the EMU Fishbowl Terrace today. Every student who contributes a suggestion will receive a free whistle. For more information, contact Tiffany Jadonik or Matthew Lieuallen at 346-0629.

have a threefold purpose. They offer support to sexual abuse survivors, help educate people about assault and teach the steps necessary to prevent the continuance of sexual violence.

"Violence against women is not just a women's issue," McCravy said. "We need to join together to spread the word that sexual abuse will not be tolerated."

Kim Shore, a junior French major, said she appreciates the informational sessions.

"The workshops are incredibly valuable because they provide information that not everyone knows about," Shore said. "I hope people go to the activities and take advantage of the chance to get involved."
