Hong Kong Fun Fair honors past, present

A speech will focus on present state of affairs

The Hong Kong Student Association is displaying its members' heritage through food and song on Sunday.

The Hong Kong Fun Fair begins at 6 p.m. in the EMU Fir Room and features Hong Kong food, videos and music.

As part of the fair, political science professor Dick Kraus will speak about Hong Kong's political and economic conditions.

The focus of his presentation will explore how life changed in Hong Kong since power shifted from the British to the Chinese on July 1, 1997. Before this date, Hong Kong was a British colony for 156 years.

"I want people to take Hong Kong seriously and to know it has its own identity. But at the same time, I want people to know how Hong Kong is changing."

Philip Yuen, a HKSA member and a Hong Kong native, said he hopes Kraus' speech, as well as the other activities of the evening, will teach people something new about his homeland.

"I want to show how Hong Kong people live, what their daily lifestyles are like," Yuen said. "I think it's important for people to learn about each other's cultures."

Caroline Lau, also a member of HKSA, said people in Hong Kong live differently than the mainland Chinese, but many Americans are not aware of the similarities.

"People in Hong Kong have more freedom than people in China," Lau said. "They have their own slang, and they are much more western. We're having our show so people can feel and experience these differences for themselves."

Tickets for the event may be purchased for $5 at the EMU Ticket Outlet or the HKSA table in the EMU lobby today.
