On a brighter note, Monique Tobbagi played as though she had never missed a game. She the Ducks with 15 kills and 19 digs.

"It's good to have her back, and she did a lot of good things for us," Nelson said. "I was most proud of her defense, and that's the thing that for her has come the furthest. She's always been a good offensive player but her defense was what really made the difference tonight."

The Ducks must regroup quickly if they are to be competitive in tonight's home game against No. 2 Stanford at 7 p.m.

The Cardinal handed Oregon a swift, 1 hour, 3 minute loss on Sept. 30. The Ducks mustered just seven total points in that match.

"They're one of the very best teams in the country, so it's not like we can look at them and say, 'OK, here we go,'" Nelson said. "But we're going to play our best. We don't have anything to lose; all we can do is get up there and challenge them as best as we can."

nominated for Pac-10 player of the week following her game-winning goal against Washington State. "Our hearts and spirits are back in it, and that's what will win it for us."

The Ducks are better at capitalizing on the chances they're given, but there's still some work to do. Oregon had 22 shots on goal against the Cougars but only scored once.

"Again, we're not as consistent as we would like," Steffen said. "When we create chances and put them away, we put teams away."

Oregon senior Sierra Marsh agreed that Oregon still needs to improve its killer instinct.

"We have to finish opportunities and be confident," said Marsh.

USC and UCLA are both coming off tough wins against California. UCLA forward Jessica Winton put the Golden Bears away with a goal 55 seconds into overtime, her second of the contest. Winton has 11 goals on the season, three shy of the UCLA freshman record.

The Trojans also beat California in overtime, courtesy midfielder Isabelle Harvey's goal.

Oregon team captain Stacey Hebert said the Ducks are starting to play well as a team, something that had been lacking.

"In the past, they played better as a team and we fell apart as a unit," Hebert said. "We are connecting and meshing well this year."

Harvey isn't the only USC player whom Oregon has to worry about. Freshman Ali Fennel — twice named Pac-10 player of the week — has six goals and four assists.

"USC is fast, and they go at you with a lot of speed," Marsh said. "There are a lot of one-on-one battles, so individually we need to step it up."

The Bruins are also explosive on offense. Junior Tracey Milburn has eight goals and four assists, and Staci Duncan has 15 total points this season.

"Both teams have tremendous individuals," Steffen said. "It's a challenge, but if we're organized, we should be okay with them."

Oregon hasn't yet been able to use the whole field to its advantage against the Bruins.

"We need to use the width more and beat them that way," said Marsh, who leads the team with 33 shots. "We have to play with a lot of heart and passion."
