The Wedding Game

Roll the die and end up at the altar; it's more fun than Chutes and Ladders.

Weddings. You can't live with them, you can't live without them.

Wait, that's an incorrect use of the adage. No matter though, because the planning stage of a wedding can be a huge headache, as many married couples will agree.

So much can go so wrong after you've done so much so right.

Even the tiniest overlooked detail — "Honey, did you remember to pick up your tux?" — can throw off the whole day.

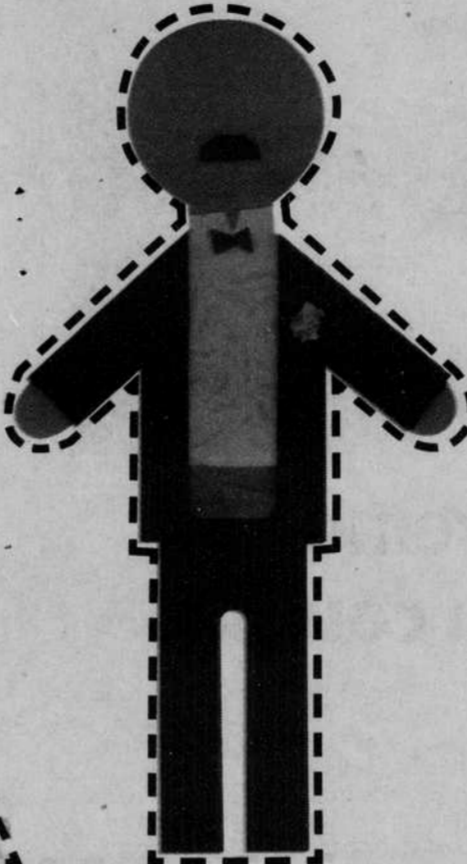

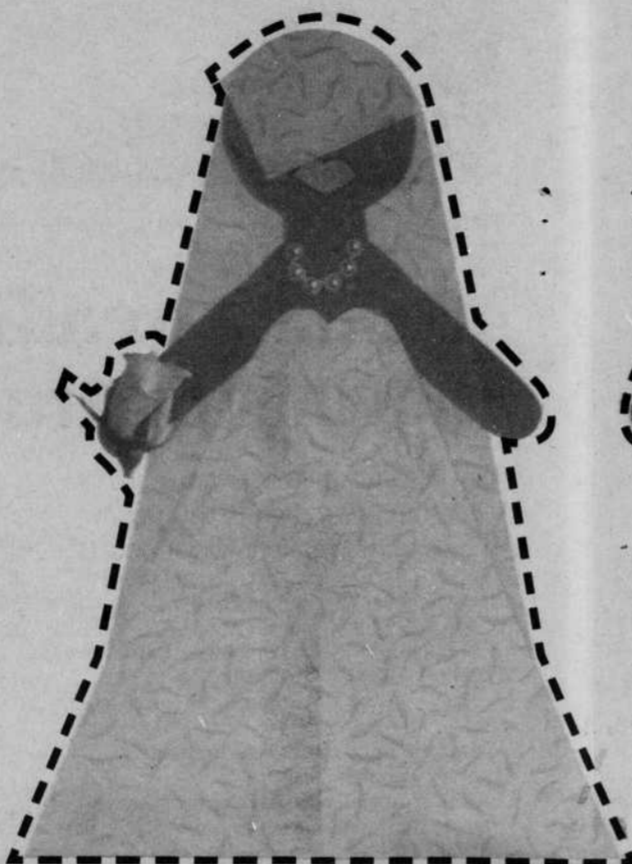

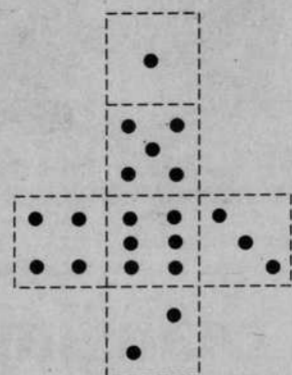

Well, before you go off the deep end with madness, take a deep breath, get some scissors and play The Wedding Game. More fun than real life, and definitely cheaper, this is fun for the whole gang.

We even supply the die, some assembly required. Grab a friend, cut out the bride and groom and see how fast you can make it to the altar.

Remember, no cheating or you're disqualified. And probably well on your way to playing The Singles Game to boot.

Enjoy!

- Rules:
1. Cut out bridal couple, place at the starting stone.
  2. Roll the die, move around the board according to the number you get, following directions along the way.
  3. Reach the wedding bands — win!
