Eugene Harris leads the Ducks into battle with Portland State tonight at Mac Court A win against the Vikings gives Oregon the season-sweep.

Ducks happy to be home

■ Oregon hopes to use its final home match to collect its 18th-straight win against Portland State Home sweet home. That's what the Oregon wrestling team is headed for when it faces Portland State tonight.

The Ducks (10-5 overall, 5-3 Pacific-10) are coming off two losses on the road. Oregon broke its six-match winning streak — its longest since the 1990-1991 — with a loss to No. 22 Boise State, and dropped the following match to No. 13 Arizona State.

Despite the losses, head coach Chuck Kearney said he still likes how his team is performing.

"I don't think we need to regroup after these losses," Kearney said. "We just need to forget the negatives and dwell on the positives. I think that this team does a great job of doing that."

Focusing on the positive, the Ducks are hoping to sweep the Vikings (3-12, 1-5) this season. Tonight's meeting is the second between the two Pac-10 rivals.

Kearney said that his team has to be ready, despite the outcome of the previous meeting.

"It's important for us not to go in overconfident," Kearney said. "Yes, we did beat them last time, but they are going to be in better shape, and their coach always prepares them."

Some of the key matchups will be in the 125-pound and 133-pound weight class. True freshman Jason Harless (125) went 1-2 recently on the road, but Kearney is starting to see good things for him.

"The match at 125 will have two good young wrestlers," Kearney said. "They have wrestled four times already and Jason has won all four."

Junior Adam Marino continues to fill in for the injured Brian Watson at 133-pounds. Kearney has seen Marino improve since being promoted to the starting lineup.

"Marino's got some experience now and he's getting better," Kearney said. "You've got to take your hat off to him, he's been wrestling up a weight class all season."

A big concern for the Ducks is the condition of Jake Leair's ankle. Leair, a 197-pounder, injured his ankle during the road trip, forcing the coaching staff to move some wrestlers around.
