

Stanford (57)

Min	FG	FT	R	A	P
Donaphin 18	3-4	3-4	1	1	9
St. Clair 25	4-6	2-2	3	0	12
Moos 34	6-9	0-0	4	0	12
Carey 25	1-9	1-2	3	1	3
Flores 40	4-9	3-4	5	8	11
Batastini 2	0-0	0-0	0	1	0
Izidor 2	0-1	0-0	0	0	0
Yamasaki 26	3-7	0-0	3	2	6
Dimson 22	1-1	0-2	4	0	2
Enghusen 6	0-1	2-2	1	0	2
Totals	200	22-47	11-16	26*13	57

Shooting: 46.8% 3-point: 2-11 (St. Clair 2-4, Carey 0-5, Yamasaki 0-2) *includes two team rebounds

OREGON (61)

Min	FG	FT	R	A	P
Dion 36	7-12	1-1	3	3	16
Wolvert 32	4-11	4-5	7	3	12
Mowe 29	4-5	3-3	8	0	11
Williams 38	3-11	3-4	2	4	10
Strange 22	2-5	0-0	2	2	4
Shreve 13	1-3	0-0	1	2	3
Craighead 10	0-2	0-0	1	1	0
Fredrick 3	0-0	1-2	0	0	1
Meharry 17	2-4	0-0	5	1	4
Totals	200	23-53	12-15	32*16	61

Shooting: 43.4 3-point: 3-13 (Dion 1-4, Williams 1-5, Shreve 1-2, Craighead 0-2) *includes three team rebounds

attendance: 5,944

Player of the Game

The junior forward returned to the starting lineup and had yet another outstanding performance against Stanford. Dion had a game-high 16 points to go along with three assists, one steal and some clutch shots in Oregon's 61-57 victory on Thursday night.

Quotes of the Game

"I'm not sure if it's Stanford or what it is. It's just kind of coincidental, it always just ends up being those Bay-Area teams."

Lindsey Dion

Junior forward from Fresno, Calif.

"I have no idea. We fouled to make her miss, then she missed and we get the ball back — people just stand around. It's extremely frustrating. The game was a lot more than that, but that was kind of a microcosm."

Tara VanDerveer

Stanford head coach on her team's breakdown with 4.1 seconds left

"Every game at this point is the biggest game. How do you eat an elephant? One bite at a time."

Jody Runge,
Ducks head coach

Best Bet

NHL
Boston vs.
New York
4 p.m., ESPN

Sports

Ducks best stand-still Cardinal

Oregon makes up for last month's collapse at Stanford by ensuring that the Cardinal pays for its late-game mistake

By Scott Pesznecker
Oregon Daily Emerald

Last month, Stanford embarrassed the Ducks.

But last night, the Cardinal (14-6, 7-3 Pacific-10 Conference) embarrassed itself.

Trailing by two points with 4.9 seconds to play, Stanford put Angelina Wolvert at the foul line for a one-and-one penalty.

Wolvert was the perfect person to foul. Although she had hit the crucial shot down low to give the Ducks (16-6, 7-3) the lead moments earlier, Wolvert was 4 of 11

Turn to Women's, page 13

■ Back in effect, junior Lindsey Dion had a clear-headed 16 points to help lead Oregon past Stanford

Mirjam Swanson

Lindsey Dion sat in the interview room in the basement of McArthur Court after Oregon's 61-57 win on Thursday night, happy and headache-free for the first time in a month.

If you don't know, the junior from Fresno, Calif., suffered a concussion at California on Jan. 13. And so she had to sit and watch the Stanford game two days later—a tough task made excruciatingly tougher because of what was happening on the floor. She watched helplessly as her teammates not only completely blew a 26-point first-half lead, but ran out of steam, got down and lost by 16.

Not at all a typical Ducks' performance. But then, they were missing Dion.

They missed her defensive play at Stanford (14-6 overall, 7-3 Pac-10), for sure, but what they especially missed were the intangible elements: intelligence, calming floor-presence, that kind of stuff.

Turn to Dion, page 13

Rowdy crowd plays a role in bringing down Stanford and quieting their smug fans

By Jack Clifford
Oregon Daily Emerald

With 1:59 left in the basketball game between Stanford and Oregon, the Ducks led 57-55 and the pep band began playing "Rocky" to incite fans in attendance at McArthur Court.

They should've offered up Gloria Gaynor's "I Will Survive" for the Oregon players, because that's exactly what the women's team did in pulling out a 61-57 win, sending the crowd into a bit of a frenzy.

An understandable reaction since this was Stanford, the renowned Stanford—arguably the team that has become Oregon's biggest rival in women's basketball.

"Because Stanford has always been a national contender and we want to be at that level, we have to beat them," Oregon graduate Danielle Martwick said during halftime, when the Ducks led 30-25.

Crowd noise no doubt played a factor in the final 20 minutes, especially near the end when a supposedly

Turn to Crowd, page 11

Kevin Calame Emerald

Jenny Mowe and the Ducks reach new heights in avenging last month's loss.

Stanford controls UO from start to finish

Oregon falls for the 13th straight time in Palo Alto, Calif., and falls two games from first place

By Jeff Smith
Oregon Daily Emerald

Oregon needed its "A" game.

It didn't have it. Stanford simply needed to play its style of game.

And boy did they. The second-ranked team in the country didn't disappoint a sold-out Maples Pavilion crowd of 7,391 with an awesome display of its unforgiving defense and explosive offense.

The Cardinal's Mark

Madsen won the opening tap and scored on the opening possession with a powerful rebound basket. The hard-nosed forward gave Stanford (20-1 overall, 9-1 Pacific-10 Conference) a lead it wouldn't relinquish in a wire-to-wire 76-6 victory over the No. 24 Ducks (16-5, 7-3).

"They're the No. 2 team in the nation for a reason because they're an excellent basketball team," Oregon head coach Ernie Kent said on KUGN. "They don't allow you to play your 'A' game unless you really, really come up to their level."

The win is Stanford's eighth in a row over Oregon and eighth in a row on the season. Its only loss came at home against Arizona, a team who they are currently tied with for first in what appears to now be a two-way race for the

Turn to Men's, page 14

