Doug Lee and the Oregon wrestlers fight back from a 6-0 deficit to beat Portland State.

Oregon grapplers survive Portland St.

■ Portland State took the Ducks to the limit before Oregon prevailed 20-19

Intrastate rivalry at its best. Friday night's matchup between Oregon and Portland State showed what Pacific-10 Conference wrestling is all about. On paper, Oregon was a heavy favorite, coming in with a record of 11-5 overall, and 4-3 in the Pac-10, while Portland State was 3-12 and 1-4 in the Pac-10. The last time these two teams met, the Ducks pummeled the Vikings 31-6.

Once they hit the mats at McArthur Court, it was a different story. Portland State took the Ducks to the limit, before falling 20-19.

Head coach Chuck Kearney knew this match would be tough for his team despite the previous outcome. "Portland State fought real hard," Kearney said. "I think we looked past a little bit because of the score last time."

The Ducks had to play catch-up all night, as the Vikings jumped to an early 6-0 lead when John Fasana pinned sophomore Adam Marino in the first period. Oregon climbed back into the match as David Watson scored a major decision over J.T. Horner, leaving the Ducks down two, 4-6.

It was a see-saw battle the rest of the night.

The Ducks pulled to within two points before Portland State re-opened the lead.

Eugene Harris beat Holyoak (10-3) to pull the Ducks within two.

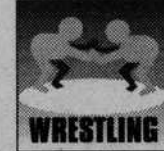

"Eugene is starting to believe in himself as much as we believe in him," Kearney said. "He's starting to get some momentum now."

Again the Ducks pulled within three points after Lee's sudden victory (4-3) against Pierce in a hard-fought win.

"That was a big match," Kearney said. "Matt was more nervous than I was."

The Ducks put it all together with three matches left. Senior Doug Lee started the push with a decision over Jeremy Wilson at the 197-pound weight class, which pulled Oregon to within 14-16.

Freshman Eric Webb won by forfeit at the heavyweight division, giving the Ducks the lead for the first time at 20-16.
