thing but make others step up and fill his shoes," he said in a released statement.

Arizona

On Saturday, it was determined that Arizona's Woods will be forced to sit for four-to six weeks with a nagging back injury.

Although Arizona will miss the junior center's dominating inside presence, the loss is softened by the return of Jefferson.

Woods reportedly suffered his injury in the Feb. 12 game against Washington State when he hit the ground awkwardly after attempting a block.

The Ducks won't miss Woods one bit when they take on the Wildcats Saturday at McArthur Court. Woods practically single-handedly beat Oregon 77-71 on Feb. 4 with an NCAA tying-record of 14 blocks in one game.

"He is the main part of our team," Arizona forward Justin Wessel said. "He changes our game plan and how teams attack us. When we play without Loren, it's a problem for us."

There was reason to smile in Arizona on Monday however, as Jefferson participated in practice for the first time after missing 13 games with a fractured right foot. Before the injury on Jan. 8, Jefferson averaged 12.2 points and 4.9 rebounds while starting in all 15 of the Wildcats' games.

"I'm still more athletic than most players on the floor," Jefferson told the Arizona Daily Star. "I'm ready to play again. I won't say excited, or anxious. Just ready to play."

UCLA

All of a sudden the Bruins can distinctly smell the postseason—and we're not talking about the NIT.

With wins over the Ducks and the Beavers, UCLA now needs only to beat California and the two Washington schools to have a realistic chance at qualifying for the Big Dance.

And then around noon on Monday, UCLA received more good news when athletic director Peter Dalis announced that sophomore forward JaRon Rush's 29-game suspension for allegedly receiving benefits from an AAU coach had been reduced to only nine games.

The ninth game is this Thurs-

Arizona State's Eddie House had a cold showing on offense last Saturday against rival Arizona, but the senior was reportedly rather active on the defensive end.

day, meaning Rush will be in action in Saturday's game against Stanford.

"I am very happy that the NCAA has reduced my suspension and I am relieved that this situation is finally over," Rush said in a released statement.

Below the belt

Arizona State's shooting phenom Eddie House has had back-to-back poor showings against Arizona this year, shooting a combined 7 for 29 for a total of only 15 points.

But Arizona guard Gilbert Arenas accused House of trying to score in a much different way on Saturday.

Arenas insists that House intentionally grabbed him in that all-so important organ below the waist.

"He did it four times in the first half, and once in the second half," Arenas said. "It's something very sneaky. It's a good little technique."

Arizona state basketball coach Rob Evans reviewed videotape of the game and did not find any "strange" contact from his star player.

"If he did, I don't want to coach him," Evans said.

House insists he didn't, but admits there may have been accidental contact.

"It was nothing intentional," House said. "There was maybe a few times when he was going to the hole, I was trying to hand-check him. I'm not sure, the game is so fast."

"I wouldn't want to touch a male's genitals."

Um... no comment.
