Women's Untold Stories Breaking Silence, Talking Back, Voicing Complexity

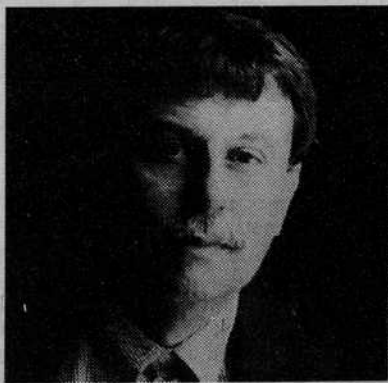

This collection of sixteen riveting essays reflects interdisciplinary feminist scholarship at its very best. They are highly readable and set forth a fresh agenda for the passionate yet critical analysis of women's storytelling. A must-read for old and young girls and women across the nation. Mary Romero, Professor in the School of Justice Studies at Arizona State, and Abigail J. Stewart, Professor of Psychology and Women's Studies at the University of Michigan are the editors of this collection. Paperback $19⁹⁵
