CARHENGE
ALLIANCE, NEBRASKA

In a bizarre homage to the mystery and beauty of ancient Britain, modern day Stonehenge's are strewn across our nation. Easily the most strange is the monumental Carhenge in Alliance, NE. Signs on the outskirts of town proudly herald the strange road side attraction, and a gift shop sells souvenirs. In Geography, we call this the "man-made environment." The globe's packed with fascinating geographic sights. Take a class and see for yourself.

Ducks' seasons are finished

Both the men's and women's teams suffer defeats in the first round of the NCAA Tournament

By Robbie McCallum for the Emerald

After coming so far and surviving through so much adversity, both Oregon tennis teams were struck down in the first round of the NCAA tournament. The Ducks faced long odds in both tournament matches, and their opponents lived up to expectations.

The Oregon women were swept 5-0 by Mississippi State in Tempe, Ariz., while the men lost 4-0 at Fresno State.

Senior Guillermo Carter will have two more matches in a Duck uniform, as he'll take part in the NCAA individual championships, while Oregon's other two seniors, Joaquin Hamdan and Alina Wygonowska, have finished their collegiate careers.

Mississippi State's depth proved to be too much for the No. 50 women's team. The Bulldogs swept the No. 2 through 5 singles matches, all in straight sets.

Doubles play and Wygonowska's match against No. 93 Arnelie Detriviere were suspended because the contest had already been decided.

"Mississippi State was just a better team than us today," head coach Jack Griffin said in a released statement. "Our girls fought hard, but they out played us in every match."

In the second round of tournament play, Mississippi State was defeated 5-0 by Pacific-10 conference foe Arizona State.

The Ducks fell to 8-15 on the year. The NCAA appearance was Oregon's second straight and third in school history, all under Griffin.

"We're happy to have made the NCAA's three out of the last four years but we have a lot of work ahead of us," Griffin said. "It was a great experience for us to be here and hopefully we can build on it."

The men faced a similar fate as the women — but against a higher ranked opponent. The contest was also suspended mid-way because Fresno State had already clinched the match.

The No. 24 team of Carter and freshman Leslie Eisinga lost a tough match to the No. 21 team of Andy Scorteanu and Rob Cheyne, 8-6. The Bulldogs clinched the doubles point on Olivier Le Jeune and Nick Fustar's win over junior David Becker and Hamdan.

After Carter and Hamdan lost, Fresno State needed only Scorteanu's 6-4, 6-3 win over freshman Oded Teig to clinch the victory. Sophomore Thomas Schneiter, Becker and Eisinga's matches were suspended.

Oregon women make NCAA cut

The women's golf team used a good final round to qualify for the NCAA Championships

By Peter Hockaday for the Emerald

The Oregon women's golf team could have folded under the pressure, but a late charge at the NCAA West Regionals in Tempe, Ariz., Saturday put the Ducks in the NCAA Championships for only the sixth time ever.

Needing to finish 11th or better at the Karsten Golf Course to extend its season, Oregon was 10th after two rounds. But after the final round Saturday, when the Ducks shot their lowest score of the tournament, they stood seventh and earned a trip to the NCAA Championships in Sunriver May 24-27.

"They played their hearts out," head coach Renee Baumgartner said. "All our hard work is paying off at the right time."

Oregon managed to finish ahead of nine higher-ranked opponents despite lacking a top-20 individual finisher. The Ducks' best were senior Anika Heuser and junior Jerilyn White, who finished tied for 21st.

No. 80 in the country, White continued to lead the Ducks in scoring. The Salem native has led Oregon in both postseason tournaments it has played. White recovered from a first-round 77 on the par-72 Arizona State course and shot two-over par for the final two rounds, including a birdie and an eagle on the final two holes.

Notably missing the NCAA Championships cut were No. 9 Oklahoma State, No. 10 New Mexico State, No. 14 UCLA and No. 16 New Mexico. In the Pacific-10 Conference, only five teams
