"I think we've got our best golf ahead of us," senior co-captain Ryan Lavoie said before the West Regionals. "I think we're one of the better teams in the country, and no one really knows about us."

A bright future

Oregon could very well be one of the better teams in the country in years to come.

Junior T.J. Duncan, who transferred to Oregon from Nevada, seems to be improving with every tournament and should lead the team next year.

Sophomore Aaron Byers ended his season on a high note, shooting a three-under par 69 in his final round at the regionals.

"I think he's learned a lot," Nosler said of Byers.

Junior Matt Genovese and sophomore Brandon Harnden got playing time this year and could make an impact next year.

But the biggest wild card for the Ducks is freshman Chris Carnahan. The Albany native had a banner season for a freshman, garnering the team's second-lowest scoring average.

"Chris Carnahan had about as good a year as any freshman I have ever had," Nosler said.

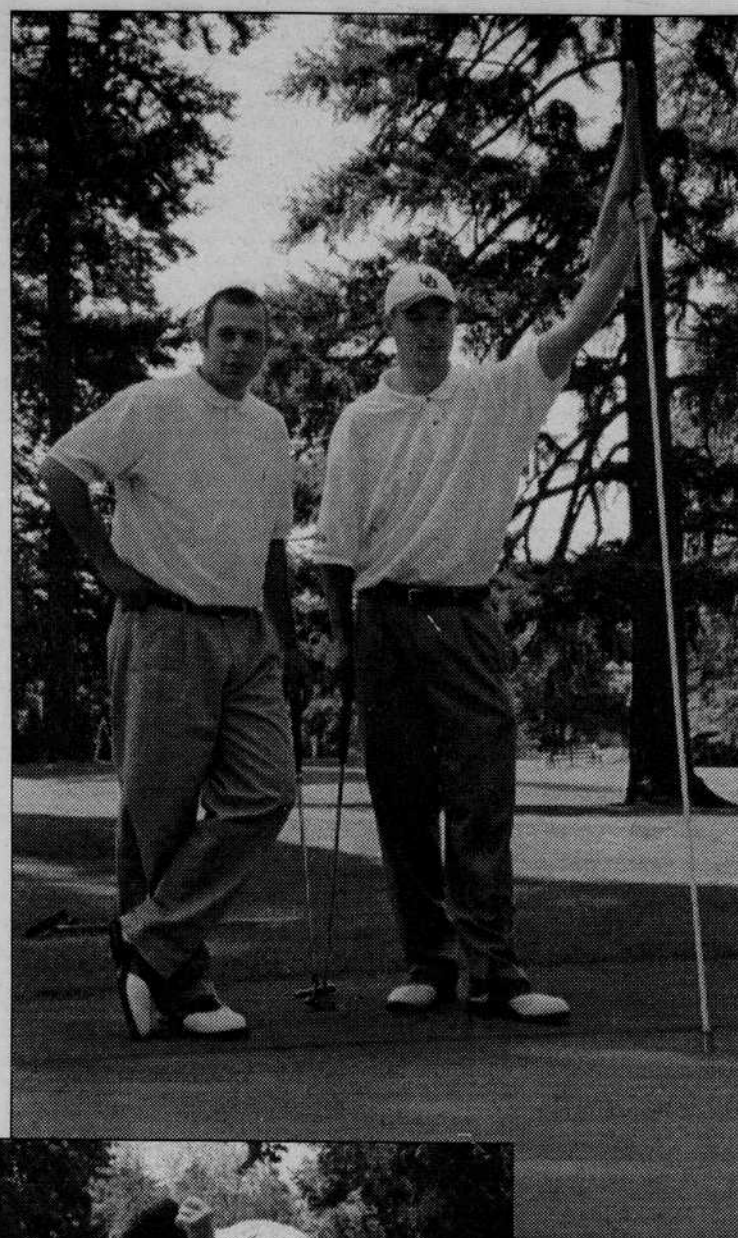

Senior co-captain Andrew Treadway said of Carnahan, "He's going to be awesome the next three years."

Bye, bye seniors

Treadway is one of two seniors that will call this their last season as Oregon players. Treadway led the Ducks with a one-under par 215 at the West Regionals last weekend, just the latest notch in his Oregon belt.

The Ashland native shot consistently low scores in his time at Oregon, coming away with a multitude of top-10 finishes.

Ryan Lavoie, Treadway's co-captain, will end his career as one of the most successful Ducks in recent memory. The team's stroke-average leader, a selection for the all Pac-10 team and an individual title at the Southwest Intercollegiate are just some of the accolades Lavoie received this year.

"They've represented themselves, our men's golf team and the University of Oregon in a very creditable fashion," Nosler said of his graduating pair.

Lavoie and Treadway will be the only two golfers to leave the team this year.

The Ducks return five freshmen, four sophomores and two juniors next year.
