

MONDAY

WRITE PAPER FOR SOCIOLOGY

WEDNESDAY

START MAKING CONTACTS FOR SUMMER JOB

FRIDAY

GO OUT WITH FRIENDS

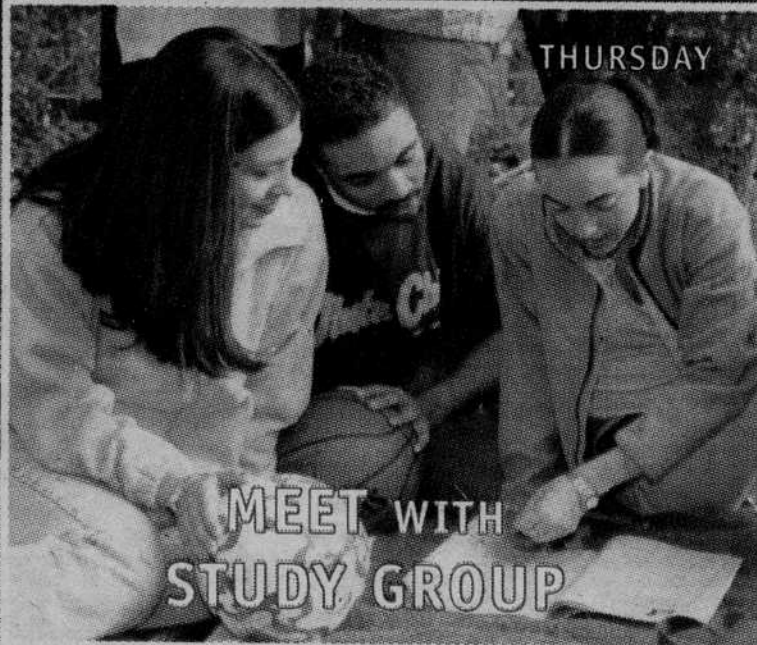

SATURDAY

WAKE UP WITHOUT A HANGOVER

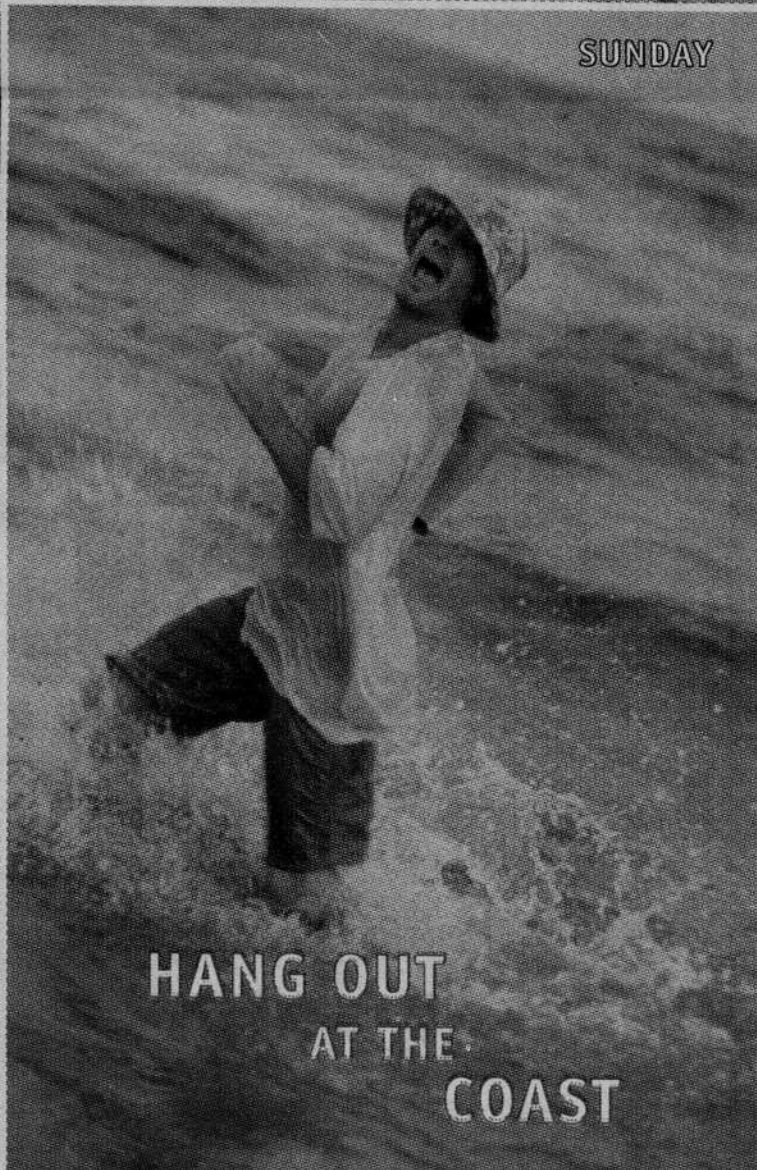

TUESDAY

SPEND TIME WITH JACK

THURSDAY

MEET WITH STUDY GROUP

SUNDAY

HANG OUT AT THE COAST

Pacers eke out Knicks

By Chris Sheridan
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers have two victories out of the way, and Patrick Ewing might be out of their way, too.

Dale Davis rebounded his own missed free throw and fed Jalen Rose for a dunk with 2.4 seconds left, wrapping up an 88-84 victory over the New York Knicks on Thursday night as the Pacers took a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Ewing, who left the game in the first quarter with a strained tendon in his foot, was never missed as much as he was on the final play.

Davis had a chance to lock up the victory but missed two free throws with 5.8 seconds left. Charging in from the foul line, he only had to get past point guard Charlie Ward for the rebound. Davis grabbed it and found Rose wide open for an emphatic slam that sealed the game.

Rose led the Pacers with 24 points, Reggie Miller had 19 for the second straight game and Rik Smits scored 10 of his 12 in the fourth quarter — long after Ewing was gone. Dale Davis grabbed 16 rebounds for the Pacers, who trailed for much of the game but scored the final six points to win it.

Ewing injured his foot with just under six minutes remaining in the first quarter after going against Davis in the low post. He sat on the bench with his foot wrapped in ice for a few minutes before walking to the locker room with two team doctors.

The news from the locker room came quickly and was not good. Ewing had what the team called a sprained peroneal tendon in his right foot and would not return.

Larry Johnson (25 points, seven rebounds) and Kurt Thomas (10 points, eight rebounds) had strong games in Ewing's absence, but New York couldn't make the plays it needed down the stretch.

Marcus Camby drew a flagrant foul with 7:05 left for shoving Miller in the back, but Miller — a 92 percent foul shooter — missed one of two. Camby stole the ball on the ensuing possession to keep New York ahead 73-71.

Thomas helped keep New York ahead despite playing with five fouls, scoring on consecutive possessions and grabbing several big rebounds on both ends. Indiana tied it, though, with 3:01 left when Smits picked up a loose ball, dunked and was fouled for a three-point play that made it 80-80.

Houston hit a jumper, Miller made a layup and Thomas and Rose exchanged jumpers to make it 84-84 with 55 seconds left.

Houston missed a bank shot and Miller was fouled with 28 seconds left, making both for an 86-84 lead.

The Knicks then isolated Sprewell one-on-one against the 6-foot Travis Best, but Sprewell's turnaround was long. After Rose's dunk clinched it, Sprewell slammed the ball off the court in frustration to run out the clock.

Now, the Knicks not only have a 2-0 deficit to deal with, they also don't know if Ewing will be able to return at full strength — or if he'll return at all.

74%

of UO students drink 1 or fewer days a week... or don't drink at all

Data taken from 1998 CORE Survey

New View 2000 Office of Student Life