

All the sounds of music can be had at local stores

■ With the option to buy, sell or trade the CDs, tapes or records you crave, these melodic emporiums have it all

Looking to make a little quick cash to cover textbook costs? Why not dig through that box of neglected CDs in the garage and make a quick trip to a local record store?

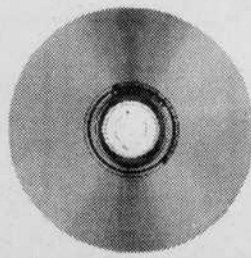

Several independent stores, on or near campus, accept used CDs for cash or trade and carry a wide range of music on CD, tape and vinyl. Most of those stores can also special order CDs and records for anyone with specific titles in mind.

Whether it's to buy, sell or trade, you don't have to wander too far off campus to find a store ready to meet your needs. Some stores even carry hard-to-find videos, T-shirts and posters. And although Green Noise moved to Portland, the remaining local stores still offer a great selection of music to meet most everyone's likes.

Here is a quick guide to what's out there.

Face the Music, 860 E. 13th Ave.,

across from the University Bookstore

The closest store to campus, Face the Music boasts a wide variety of new and used CDs, box sets, magazines and random small toys, as well. They pay anywhere from $1-$4 cash or $1-$5 trade for used CDs, depending on the condition and popularity of the CD. Their used CDs tend to sell from between $1.98-$10.

Although they do not generally carry records or videos, they can special order either one with no down payment.

Face the Music is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day except Sunday, when store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

House of Records, 258 E. 13th

Ave.

House of Records carries new and used records and CDs, as well as tapes, box sets, postcards and zines. They can also special order most anything, including videos, for a $2 down payment.

House of Records generally pays $3-$5 for used CDs, depending on the condition, rarity and popularity of the title, and they sell used CDs for around $8. They sell a wide range of music on vinyl as well as CD, and readers of the Eugene
