

WASHINGTON VS. OREGON

KICKOFF AT 12:30 PM, AUTZEN STADIUM SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 30, 2000

GAME DAY

OREGON DAILY EMERALD · 29ND OF SEPTEMBER, 2000 · VOL. 102 #24

NORTHWEST SUPREMACY

Summary summary siu,m this is a summery summary summm

■ The No. 20 Oregon Ducks look to defend their home turf yet again against their Pac-10 rival from up north

By Jeff Smith
Oregon Daily Emerald

Yummy.
Like a nice, juicy steak sitting in front of you waiting to be devoured, this Saturday's Northwest showdown between the No. 6 Washington Huskies and the No. 20 Oregon Ducks has many mouths watering.
Oregon defensive end — and Seattle native — Saul Patu mentioned back on Monday that he was already "licking his chops" in anticipation.
Rightfully so, as this game has all the ingredients necessary to assemble a full-course meal.
First of all, there's the obvious: The winner of this weekend's contest at 12:30 p.m. in Autzen Stadium has the early advantage in the Pacific-10 Conference race for the roses. Granted, it's only September, but this game carries the maximum amount of postseason impact that a game this soon in the year could.

3

Watch Peter outpick the rest of the sports staff

Adam is the coolest guys on the sports staff yeah baby

7