where also cited for an MIP at the same house.

Police also shut down parties at 1539 Villard St., where they cited five University students for MIPs and wrote one citation for allowing minors to drink; 991 W. 11th Ave. where four University students and two from LCC received MIPs; 1390 Alder St., where a dozen University students received MIPs; 1975 Hilyard St., where six University students and one Oregon State University student received MIPs; 3415 Onyx St., where two University students received various citations; and at 2656 Alder St., where 13 University students, two LCC and three University of Washington students received MIPs.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at 1708 Alder St. also received a visit from the police department, and four University students there received MIPs. A spokesman for the house would not comment on the incident.

Eugene police cited 49 University students and other revelers during the weekend at parties shut down by the department.

Those cited received tickets for:

- Minor in Possession of Alcohol
- Allowing the Consumption of Alcohol by a Minor
- Interfering with a Police Officer

Police spokeswoman Jan Power said that while the weekend was not as bad as others in recent years, "from the people on the party patrol, they're saying it's right up there."

Powers also said police are seeking clues in a burglary and possible attempted rape case. According to a police report, at about 5:30 a.m. on Saturday a Latino man entered an 18-year-old University student's apartment in the 1800 block of Harris Street and "attempted a sexual contact." The woman ordered the man to leave and he did, taking some of the woman's property. He is described as being about 30 years old and 5 feet 10 inches tall with a slender build. The case will be reviewed by the department's violent crimes unit to see if there is enough evidence to charge attempted rape. "The potential for one is there," Powers said.

Police are also seeking information about the armed robbery of the Albertson's Food & Drug, 3075 Hilyard St., at 12:13 a.m. Saturday morning. Two men wearing black nylon stockings over their heads and carrying handguns robbed the store of an undetermined amount of cash.

If anyone has information on either crime, they are asked to call the police department at 682-5121.

New faculty

As in Hardwick's case, the weather seemed to play a role in other faculty members' decisions to make the move as well.

"We've been here for three months now, since mid-July," said Joel Sneed, a new accounting professor who came from Arizona. "We wanted to leave before it got really hot there."

Besides the difference in weather, Sneed has also noticed the large number of students that come through campus daily.

"It is unbelievably crowded," he said. "The college of business at Arizona is off to the side and really relaxed. Here, the College of Business is right in the middle of everything."

Another factor that influenced Sneed's decision to come here was that he was looking for a "smallish town" to live in.

Sneed and his wife seemed to find what they were looking for in Eugene.

"We just had a child nine months ago and are expecting another one," he said. "It's nice to live in a town like Eugene."

The "excellent" University and faculty, as well as the fact that the University is a Pacific-10 Conference school, were also factors.

For Julie Haack, a new assistant chemistry department head and teaching administrator, being an undergraduate played a significant role in her decision to come back to the University.

"I was working in a bio-tech start-up company in Portland, and the chemistry department here had some programs that really interested me," she said.

Haack, who had previously done some teaching at the University as a teaching fellow, said that her first week has been fantastic.

"The University faculty is incredible, and the administration has been very helpful," she said.

The University's dance department and regional location is what lured new dance professor Walter Kennedy to the University.

"A very nice offer and a very nice dance department in a beautiful part of the country is what made me come to the University," he said.

Kennedy, who came from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, said he enjoys the nature of a smaller, more intimate campus.

"I love it, I am very excited," he said. "There are going to be new challenges and talented students."
