

Scandalous laughter

26

Scandal's night club transforms into a home for stand-up comedy

Know your wine

86

Knowledge of the beverage isn't exclusively for the socially elite

■ Two intrepid reporters traverse the campus in search of the choicest commode

By Suzanne O'Kelley and Mason West
Oregon Daily Emerald

People, let's face it. When nature is calling, you pick up the phone, but that doesn't mean the call must be collect. In other words, why pay the price of just an average restroom? Unfortunately, the common student in a tight squeeze doesn't have the time to be picky about his or her washroom. To solve this problem, we embarked across campus on a scientific mission to find a clean latrine. Our advanced criteria for judging the common water closet were:

- overall cleanliness
- stall quality and quantity
- condition of supplies
- availability of paper towels or air dryers
- quality of mirrors
- safety
- style of urinal (for men)

As part of our survey, we dropped by 12 bathrooms for men and women in various buildings on campus. It should be noted that this is a very small sample of campus commodes. So, to compensate, we strove to examine the most

Turn to Bathrooms, page 4B