

Place-kicker Josh Frankel, who made all four extra points against USC, can redeem himself in front of Oregon fans Saturday.

Emerald

Football

continued from page 7

Trojans, but he stops short of saying he redeemed himself.

Frankel left a sour taste in the mouths of 45,000-plus fans three weeks ago at Autzen Stadium when he missed three field goal attempts and an extra point against Washington.

In the following bye week, Bellotti and Frankel spent time watching game film. They spotted some things that he was doing wrong in his approach and spent the next week correcting them.

Frankel believes that whatever happened against the Huskies was a one-time thing. Now, he has to prove it.

"That was a bad day," Frankel said. "It's going to happen to even the best of 'em; there are no excuses about it. It was flat-out awful, but you can't dwell on it. You have to move on and keep working hard."

While the Ducks rested a week-and-a-half ago, Frankel was paying close attention to the college football scene. He watched Florida State's Matt Munyon send a field goal right of the uprights, giving Miami an upset win and possibly costing FSU a national title. He also watched Oregon State kicker Ryan Cesca launch a wide-right kick, costing the Beavers a win over the Huskies that what would have been the biggest win in their recent history.

Both situations inspired him to better his skills.

"I felt bad for those kids, but that's the way it goes sometimes," Frankel said. "That's the life of a kicker. Sometimes you'll be put in a position where you have an opportunity to win the game. Sometimes you make it, and other times, unfortunately, you won't.

"They say that you win as a team and lose as a team unless you're a kicker, but that's all part of the job."

The Autzen advantage

The Ducks play at home for the first time in three weeks in this Saturday's homecoming game against the Arizona Wildcats.

It should be noted that in Oregon's two road games, opponents were allowed a combined total of 531 yards rushing offense.

Opponents in the Ducks' four home games were held to a combined 218 yards.

« That was a bad day. It's going to happen to even the best of 'em; there are no excuses about it. It was flat-out awful, but you can't dwell on it.

Josh Frankel
Oregon place kicker **»

Hackett can't hack it

The Daily Trojan, Southern California's equivalent of the Oregon Daily Emerald, has been running an interesting poll about Trojan football coach Paul Hackett, who is gaining unwanted notoriety from his team's horrendous 0-3 conference record.

The poll, titled the "Paul Poll," asks USC students if Hackett should remain the team's head coach.

The result as of Sunday was 46-5, and guess which side had the 46 votes.

Things aren't looking good for poor Hackett.

FEW KIDS GROWING UP IN OUR LOWEST-INCOME AREAS HAVE EVER HEARD OF AN AP BIOLOGY CLASS.

RAY CHIN STARTED ONE IN INNER-CITY LOS ANGELES. IN ONE YEAR, HE COACHED 20 OF HIS 26 STUDENTS TO SCORE A 3 OR BETTER ON THE EXAM.

WE NEED MORE RAY CHINS.

ONE LEARN HOW YOU CAN JOIN THE FUTURE OF LEADERSHIP AND DIVERSITY EFFORTS BY APPLYING FOR ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS WITH PLACEMENT TWO YEARS TO TEACH IN OUR NATION'S MOST UNDER-SERVED SCHOOLS.

INFORMATION SESSION
Wednesday, October 25, 2000 • 6:00 p.m.
University of Oregon, EMU, Coquille Room

TEACHFORAMERICA

1-800-TRAY-1230 WWW.TEACHFORAMERICA.ORG
FIRST APPLICATION DEADLINE IS OCTOBER 30, 2000