Ironminds ironminds.com

A smart and edgy web magazine with a pop-cultural slant, Ironminds is definitely worth checking out. The site is updated regularly, and features eclectic and well-written articles, interviews and reviews. The design of the site also should be mentioned, for it is visually pleasing, elegant and easy to use. DDesmond

EDITOR'S PICK

ChemWeb chemweb.com

This excellent site offers a range of resources for chemistry majors, from online databases of chemical data to info on conferences and much more. There are also hundreds of chemistry journals, some of which are free to browse and others that cost money. The amount of data on this site is truly huge and anyone involved in chemistry should make it their first stop on the web. DDesmond

The Window trincoll.edu/depts/phil/philo

The philosophy department of Trinity College maintains "The Window," which is a good introduction to philosophical resources on the web. The site has short biographies of major philosophers and links to related sites; there is also a larger collection of links to other resources on the web, such as philosophical encyclopedias, journals and the complete copies of many philosophical texts for you to download. DDesmond

Psychology.org www.psychology.org/links

Pavlov, Piaget, Skinner and Watson never had it so good. This site is the encyclopedia of psychology, with 2,046 links to psychology sites all over the www. Whether you're looking for career know-how, psychology publications or practical applications for psychology, this site is a synopsis of what's out there. The most useful part is the resources, where you'll find help on how to study, how to research for projects and even info on how psychology relates to humor. YTabi

"MAPS" www.english.uiuc.edu/maps/index.htm

This site is an Internet companion to the Anthology of Modern American Poetry (Oxford Univ. Press, 2000). Its designer, Cary Nelson, has included everything for the modern poet and creative writer, from readings of poems to their historical backgrounds. There are links to publishers, from Feminist Press to Harvard University Press, and the site welcomes archival contributions on modern poets. A good place to go if you want to research famous modern poets, the more obscure ones will probably require searching individual sites. YTabi

"So You've Decided to be Evil" members.tripod.com/~mrpuzuzu/index.html

Tired of being a do-gooder, a model citizen, spreading good tidings and joy to an unappreciative world? It's time to join the ranks of the evil ones. "Evil" is a hilarious web site which provides a step-by-step guide to joining the forces of darkness. It will teach you the ways of Beelzebub, from formalizing an objective (world domination?) to evil-doer fashion. It's as good a career choice as any. JLegaspi

JOBS

10 Minute Resume 10minuteresume.com

If you're getting started in the job market, need somewhere to organize your resume online, or just want a few hints on the presentation and content of your resume, this site can be a great help. The main feature is a resume writer: You provide the details, such as your education and past work experience, and the site organizes it for you into a professional-looking resume, which you can then print in a variety of formats. DDesmond
