Banged-up Ducks looking for a win

■ A pair of should-win games await the Oregon club hockey team on the road

By Inge Scheve

The Oregon club hockey team is gearing up for the season's last road trip: Bellingham, Wash., where it faces off against Western Washington this weekend.

"It doesn't feel good, but we're concentrating on the PAC-8 right now," forward Nathan Vogel said. "We're looking to just stay physical."

The Ducks are licking wounds from last weekend's tough games and hurting from rough losses at home against Washington, Oregon captain Tyler Shaffar said, but most of the players will hit the ice this weekend despite a long list of injuries.

Last time the Ducks played the Vikings — at home in November — they split.

"I have no doubt that we are a better team," Shaffar said. "Man-for-man, we'll easily beat Western. But people have to pick it up."

A problem for the ailing Ducks and a fact that contributes to their losing record this season is their reliance on the top three or four players, Shaffar said. "We got to produce all around. We can't go scoreless."

In particular, Shaffar said he is hoping to see good hockey from Jack Hendrickson and Scott Tedrick.

"They need some confidence," Shaffar said, adding that both Hendrickson and Tedrick are hard workers. "And that's the bottom line when we go into the championships."

While the outcome of these games won't change much for the Ducks' record, and the national championships are nowhere in sight for Oregon, it would be nice to have two wins going into the PAC-8 championships, Shaffar said.

"A key word is 'pride,'" he added. "It's a matter of people giving 100 percent going at it. People are paying to watch."

Polo team looks to improve 2-0 mark

■ Club sports heats up this weekend with women's polo, men's rugby and men's lacrosse all seeing action

By Jesse Thomas

The Oregon Club Sports women's water polo team will travel to Federal Way, Wash., this weekend to play teams from up and down the West Coast in the Sea Otter Invitational Tournament.

The Ducks are 2-0 after beating Oregon State 15-5 and Western Oregon 13-9, and they said they plan to finish better than last year's third-place performance at the tournament.

"We are going for number one, and we aren't going to settle for anything less," senior Nicole Penland said.

Many transfer students have joined the team this year, adding speed and power to help perfect what the team hopes will be a perfect season.

"We are playing all new teams we have never played before, and we will be better than last year," head coach Lea Bonebrake said.

Men's rugby

After coming off a strong victory over Stanford, 32-10, last weekend, the Oregon men's rugby team takes on Brigham Young this weekend in Eugene.

The Ducks — who are off to a 1-1 start after defeating Stanford and losing to Sacramento State — have a string of games ahead that includes Washington this weekend.

"Brigham Young is a strong team, but we need to stay focused with what we are doing and not change our level of play for them," head coach Bob Snyder said.

Oregon and BYU met last year in a tournament where they played only one half (20 minutes) of a regular game, with the Ducks falling 20-10.

"They aren't any better athletes than us and we can for sure hang with them," team coordinator Will Middleton said. "We like being the underdogs."

Men's lacrosse

The Oregon men's lacrosse team is looking to improve to .500 in a home game this weekend against Western Washington.

The Ducks suffered a close loss to Chico State, 13-12, last weekend, leaving them with a 1-2 overall record.

Team coordinator Beau Dickey said the team has upgraded in a lot of areas this year and is looking to improve upon last year's record of 7-10.

"It will be a close game against Washington and might even go into overtime," Dickey said. "We are considered the team who is going to upset everybody."

This will remain to be seen as the two teams face off at 1 p.m. Saturday on the turf field next to the Student Recreation Center.
