may have also heard rumors about a way to speed up your earnings with programs that simulate continuous mouse movement, but they are against the rules.

Play the stock market: Similar to Alladvantage.com is coolwallstreet.com, which is much more entertaining. It is a simulated stock market, based on real stocks. The way it works is that you download its advertising bar and watch it while you are on the Web, which earns you CoolWallStreet Dollars (CWS Dollars). You use these to buy and trade for stocks, based on the real stock market prices. If you make enough profit online, you can use your CWS Dollars to bid on real money and prizes in an online auction. In my experience with this site, it was very cool at first to watch my stocks, until the stock market plunged to a near-Black Tuesday simulation. So, I'm still working on getting enough profit to get into the auction, but the stock market is looking brighter now.

Get lucky: An even easier site to take advantage of is Luckysurf.com, which is a free lottery. You pick seven numbers for a daily lottery to win $1 million. The only obligation is to register and click on an ad to enter your numbers. The site is backed by Lloyd's of London brokerage firm and will send you an e-mail with the drawing results. The odds of winning this one might not be that great, but put it in your bookmarks, take a minute every now and then, and you never know what might happen.

One man's waste is another man's want: Finally, a more sure-fire way to earn money over the Internet is on the famous eBay.com. Take a look around your room and survey any stuff that you might be able to pawn off for a couple of bucks. It's amazing to discover the variety of items bought and sold on eBay, from concert tickets to clothes to a box of envelopes. Everything can be sold. A word of caution: Not only can you possibly become addicted to eBay and uncontrollably sell things you might need in the future, but it is also extremely tempting to bid on the incredibly good deals you stumble across. Don't forget that this is an attempt to earn money, not spend it.

In conclusion, you probably won't become a millionaire from these sources, but hey, every little bit helps. The whole college experience is not only about hitting the books, but also learning how to be street-savvy and make the most of your resources. So go get that cash you've previously worked so hard to earn!

Camouflage

any yet.

Sara Henley, a Gap employee, has the answer to explain the military invasion.

"The idea of military dress is that [it is] designed for function. Fashion is taking a more practical bent," she said.

Camouflage is one trend, but spring will boast a big basket of fashion. Henley says that bright colors are back in this season, as well as polo shirts and capri pants. "People like capris because they're a nice way to skirt around wearing shorts," she said.

Katy Fachko at the Bon Marche pointed out another "girl power" fashion for spring: cowboy.

"Cowboy is really big because of Madonna," she said.

Fachko also said that duster sweaters will be essential for the spring wardrobe.

So while the military style is not taking the entire fashion world by storm, people must decide whether they are going to enlist.

Jody Coyote

Jody Coyote's original, free-spirited collection joins the UO Bookstore

On Friday, April 13, the UO Bookstore will premiere their brand-new display of beautiful, handcrafted, high quality, original jewelry from Eugene's own Jody Coyote.

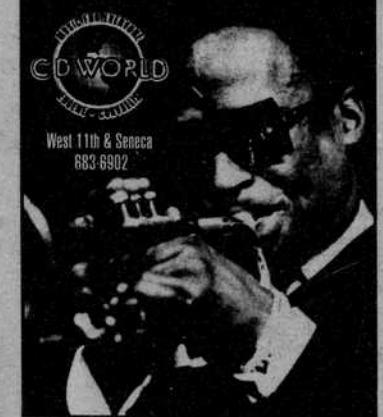

Gary Dye of Jody Coyote will also be on hand this Friday from 10-2pm to show off their exciting jewelry designs and answer all your questions.
